Dear Vernell!
Good luck in all you do,
you really a beautiful person who knows where her head is at.
This whole year has been a trip. I glad that I met you. Be good and have a neat summer

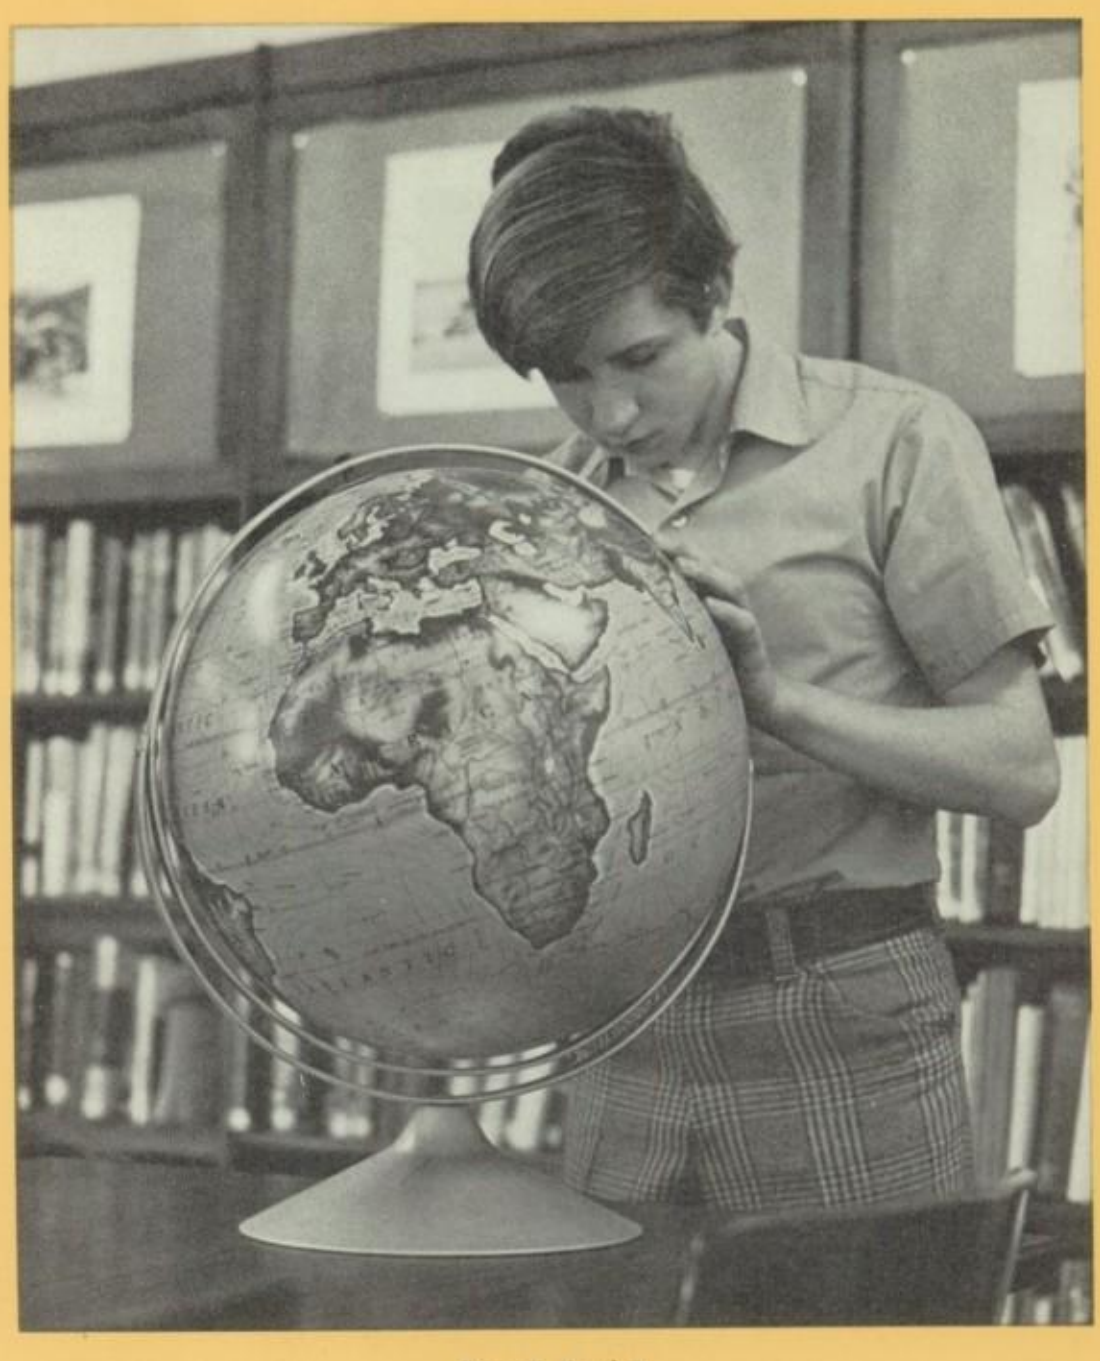
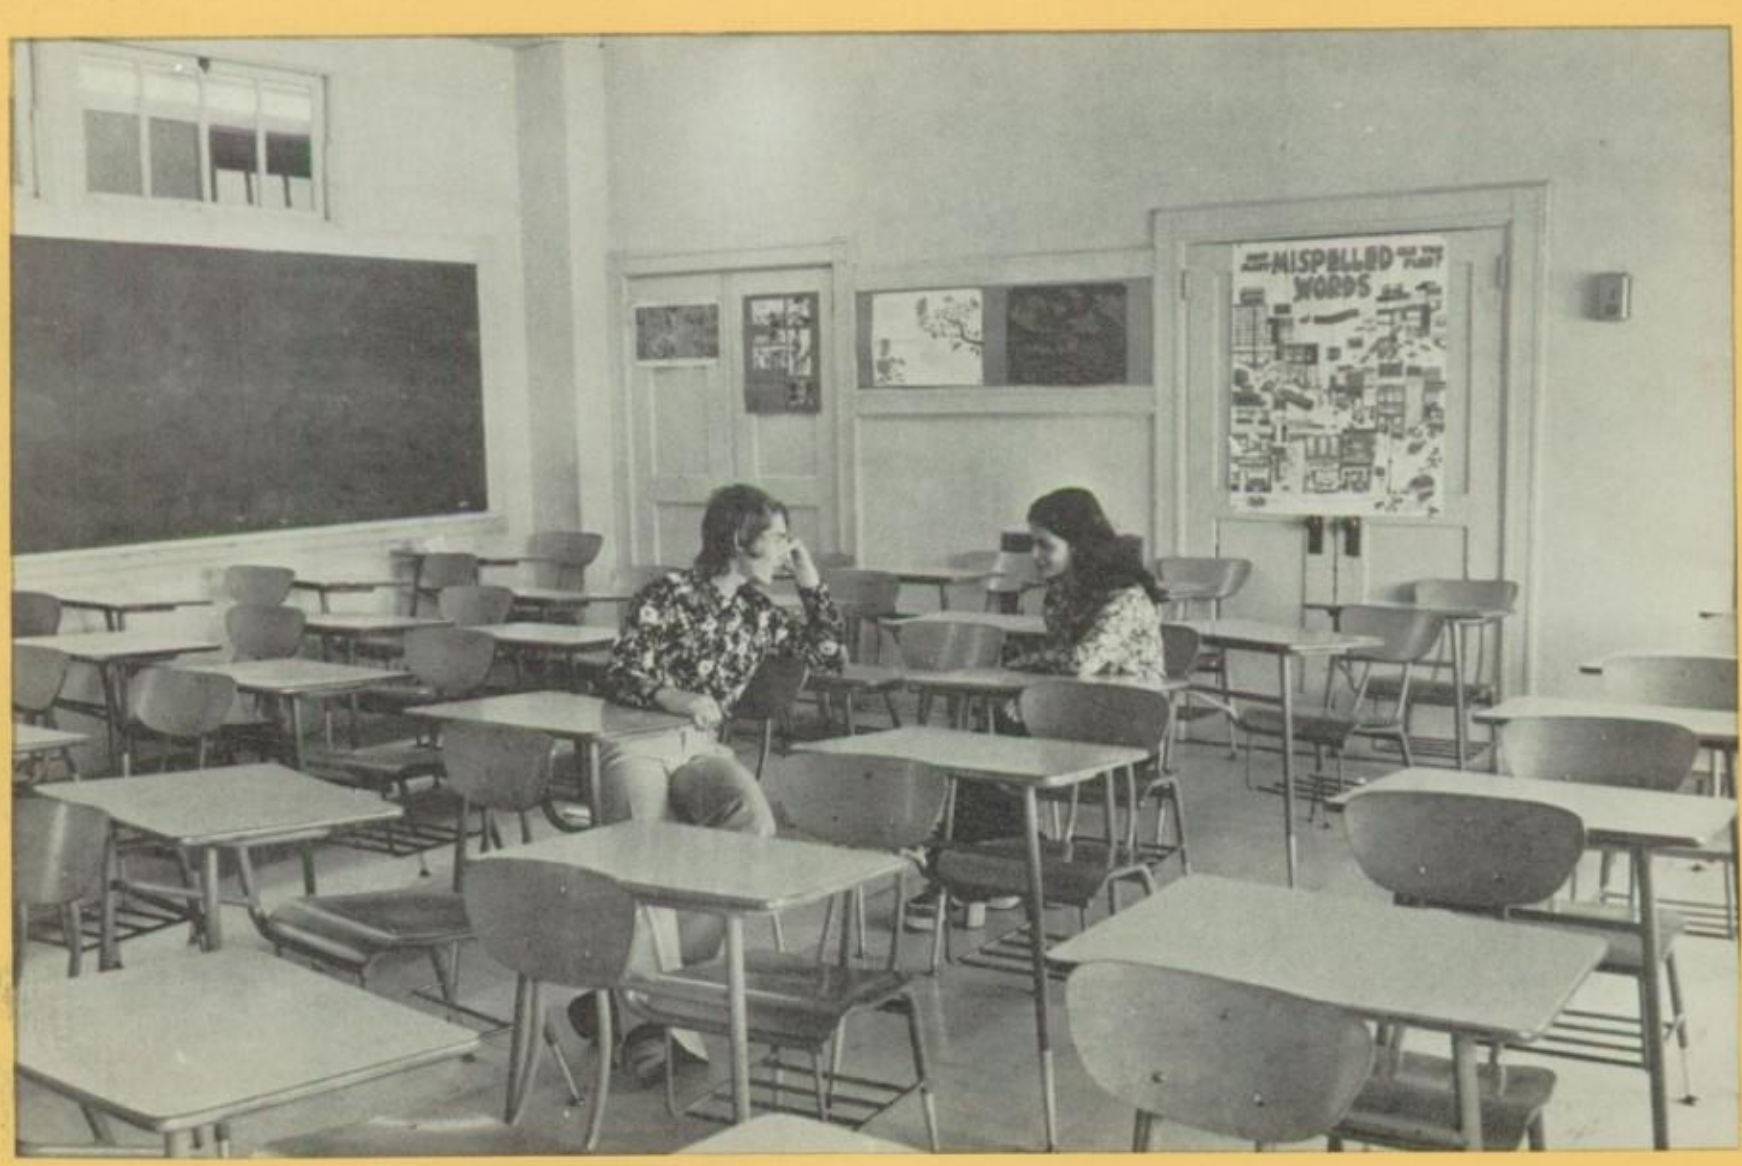
Now is a time for growing — inward, outward, forward and sometimes back again. The world opens wide before us, intimidating, coaxing. Our spirit, heart, and mind tumble over one another in their eagerness to explore, experience and learn.

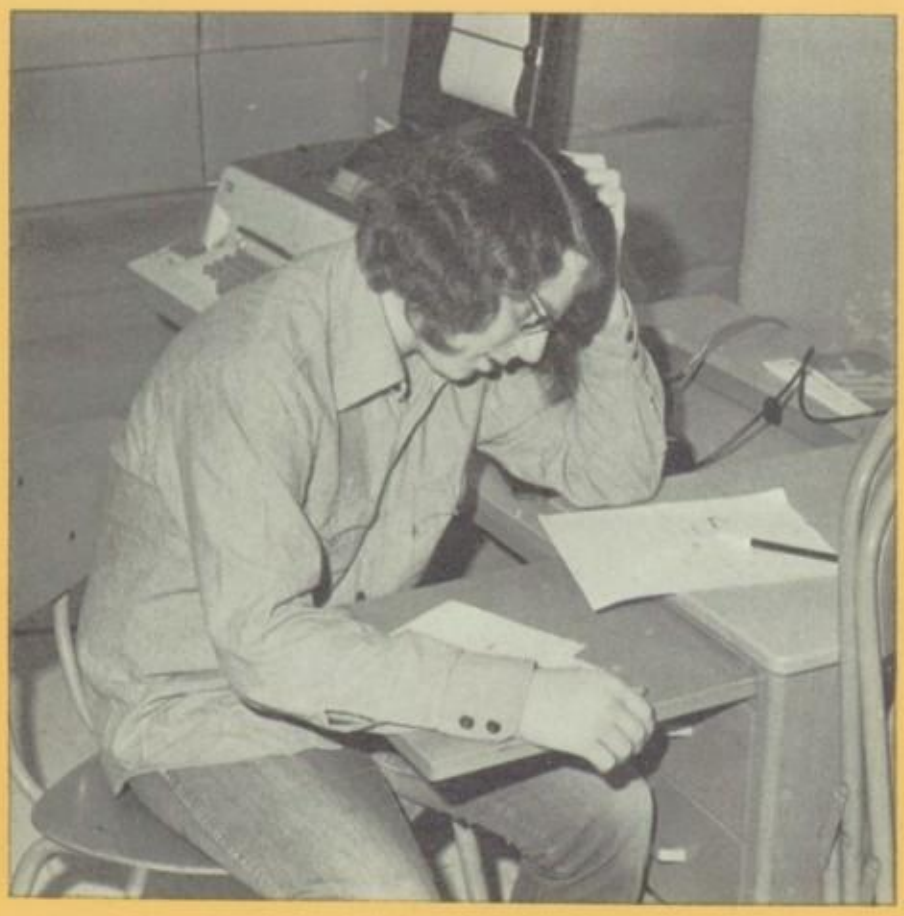


Frank Lysick



Bob Terefanko and Darrah Heyman

Debbie Santoro

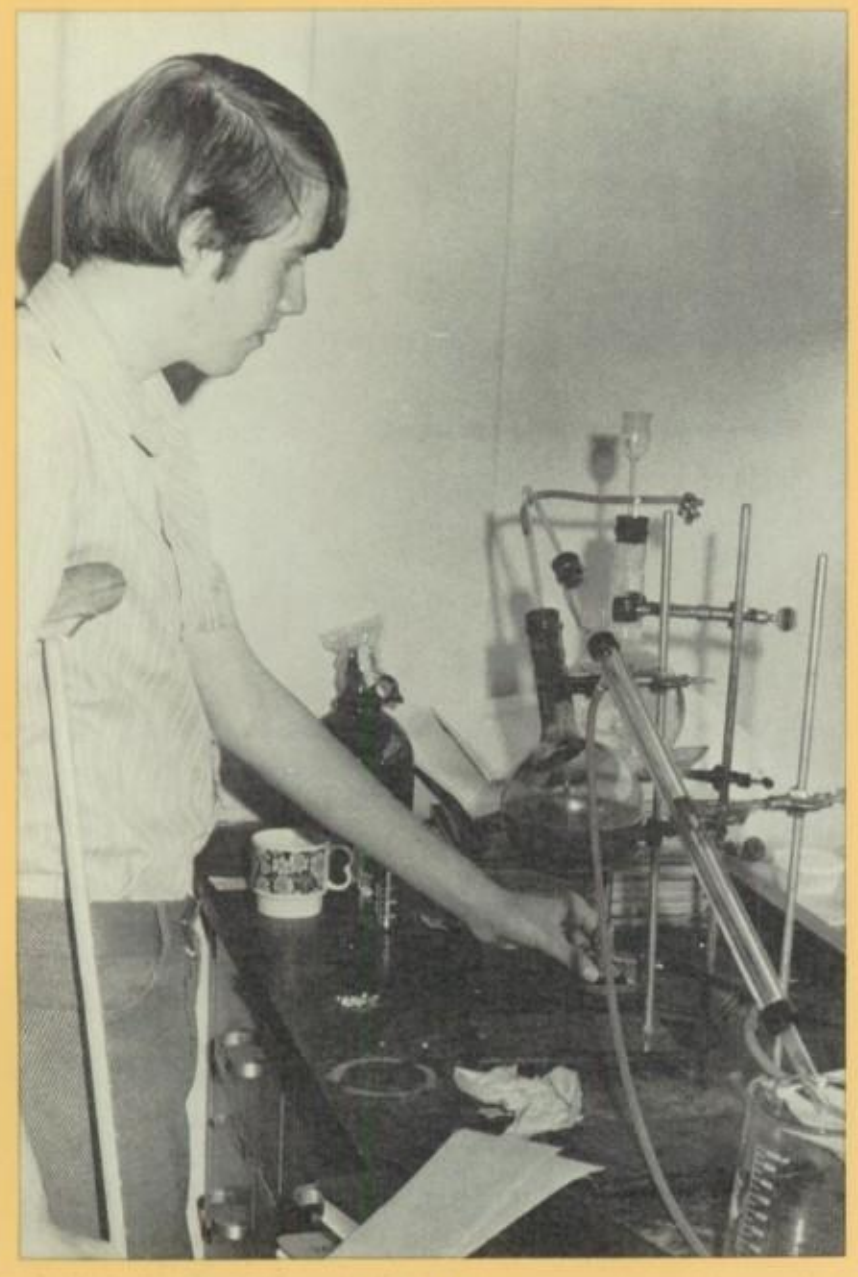


Dave Halberstadter

Bursting with wonder and why, wanting to discover all there is to know, we find that every answer demands another.

Every emotion, inspiration, bit of reasoning builds upon the one past and brings us to a new one. We find ourselves in a state of constantly expanding awareness.

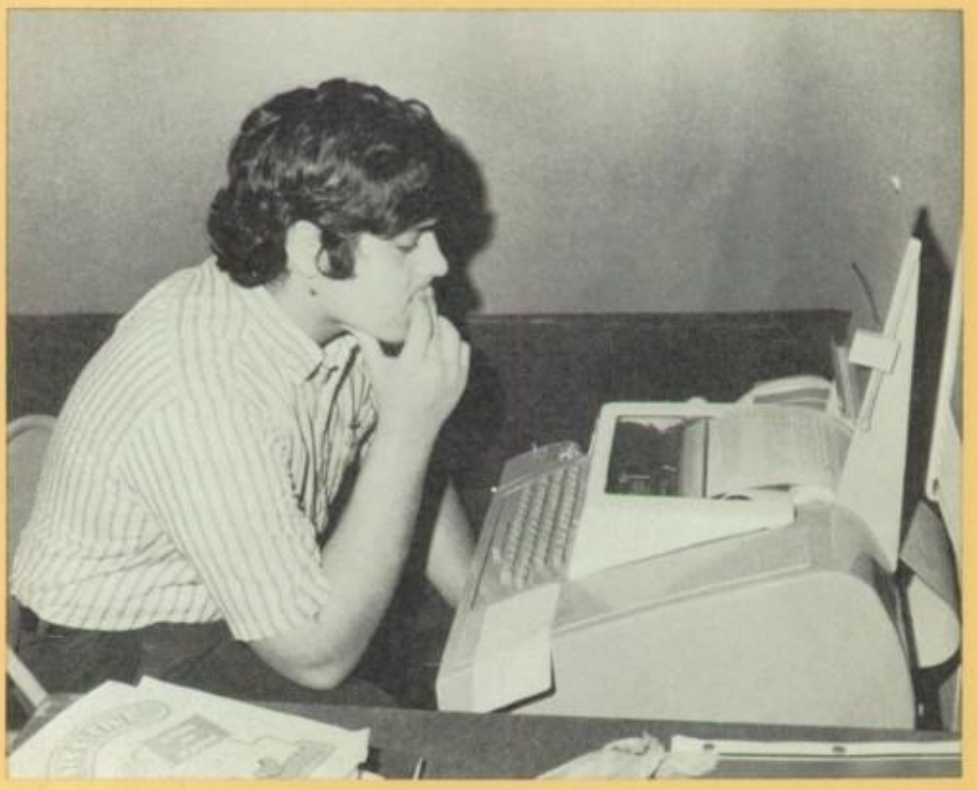
Rosemarie Bartiromo



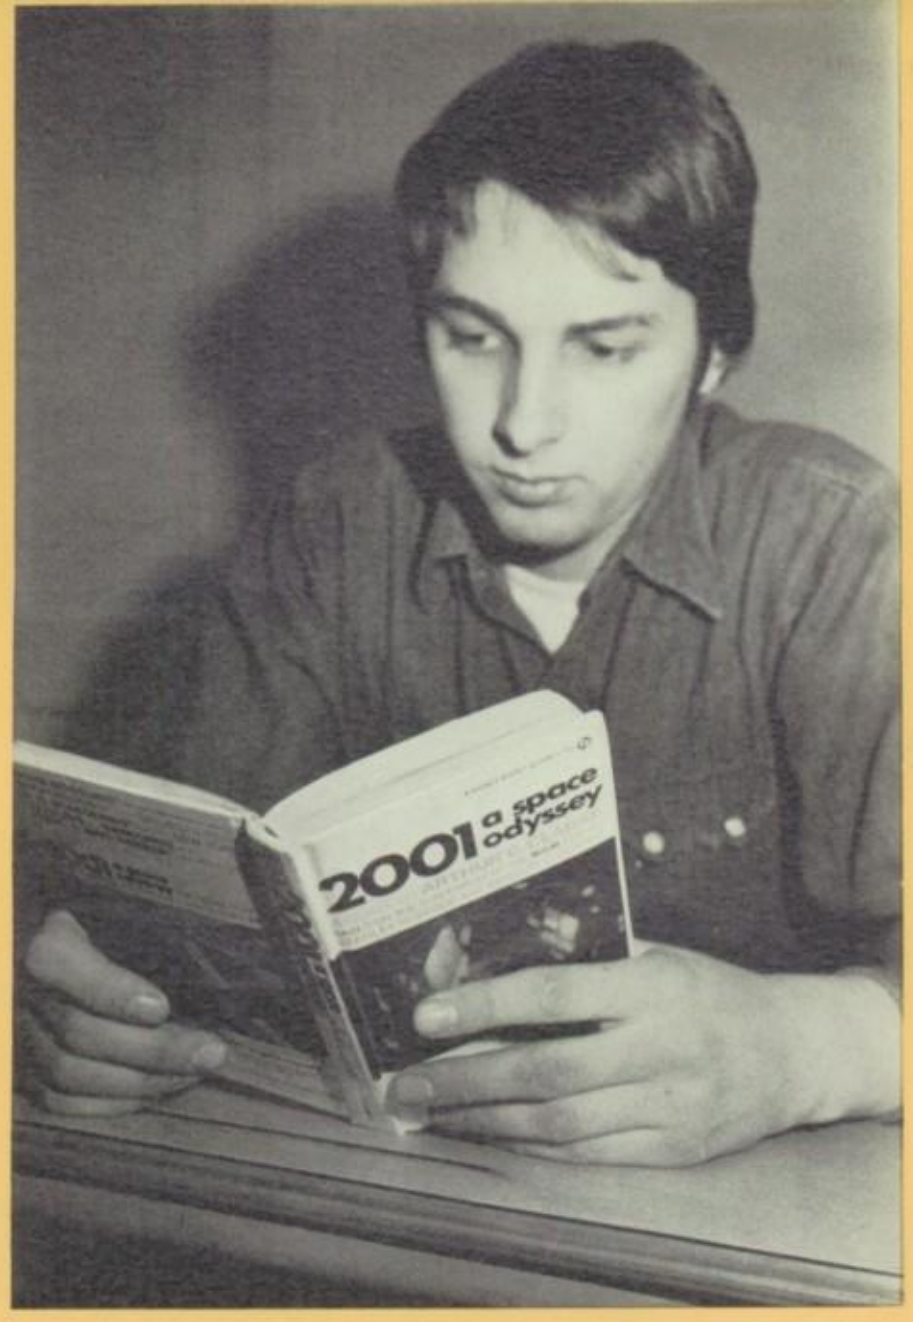
Peter Murin

Sondra Smith

The world opens quickly, so quickly before us. We are flooded, overwhelmed, with things to analyze, absorb, process and dispose of. We learn to use our minds and command them like machines, all the while beginning to realize our capabilities and limitations.



Mike Nazarian

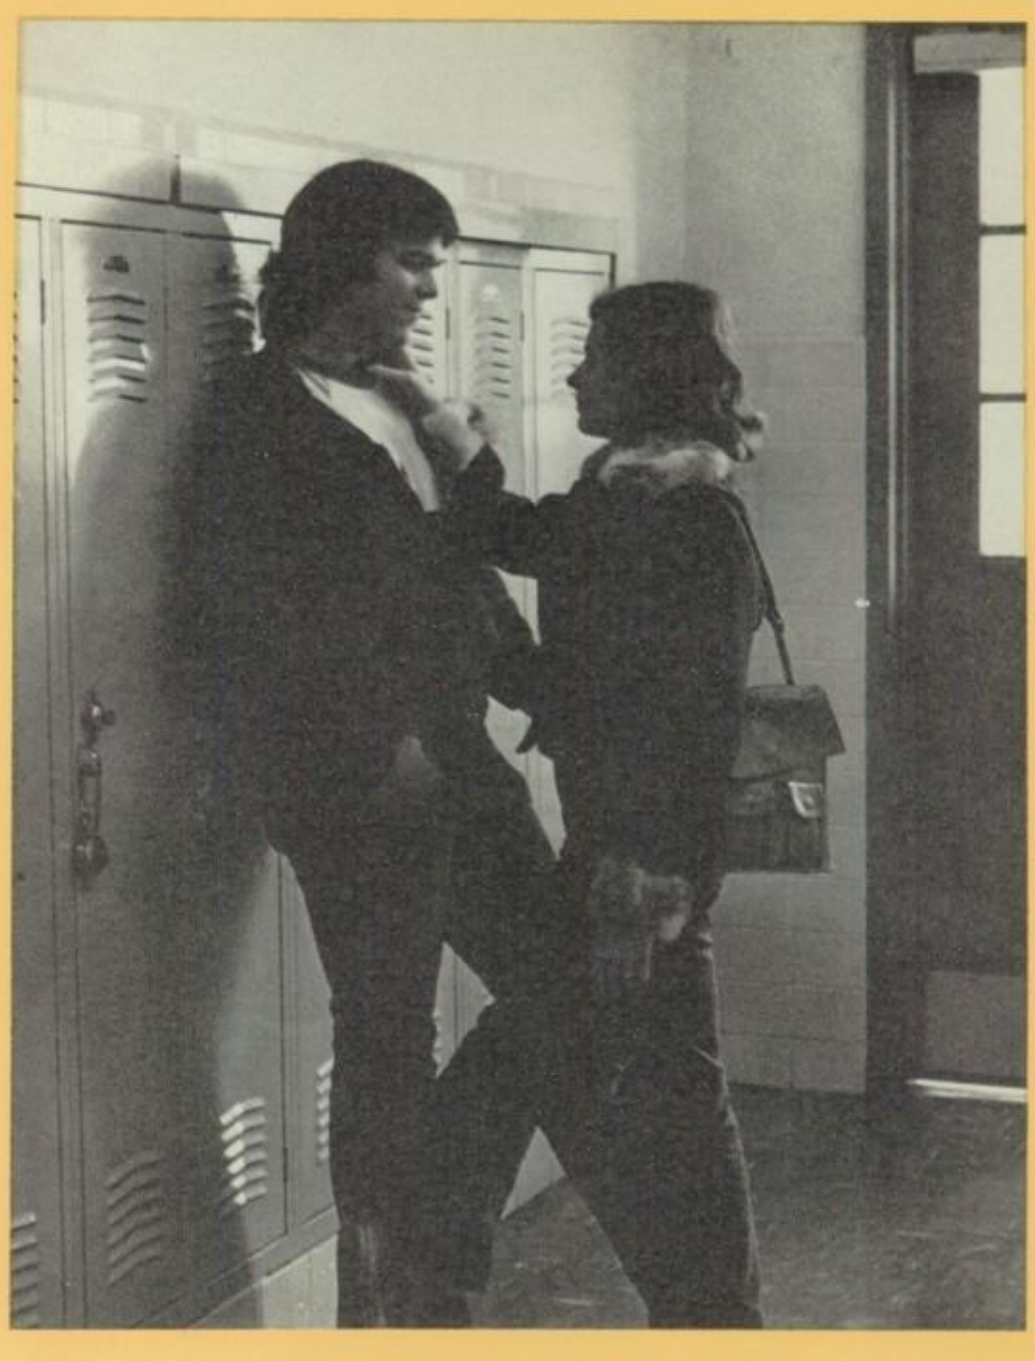


We cannot help but wonder at the places our books and lessons bring us, for the more we learn the deeper is life's complexity. And, too often, the hardest things to know are the simplest in life . . .

Gerard Solas

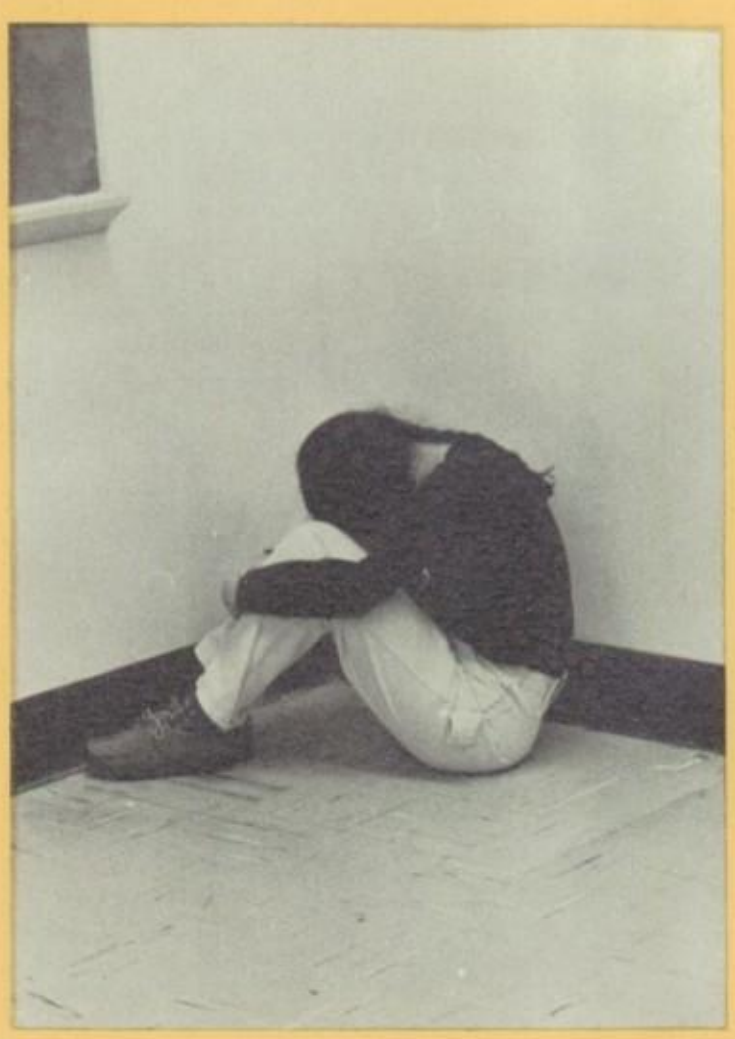
George Orak

Looking outside ourselves, we see in so many others that which is us. We form friendships, learning what it is to be a part, learning to give and take. Responding to the needs of another, we forget ourselves for a moment and involve ourselves wholly with another person. We answer that special need to be close to someone and discover a new kind of love. But love is only one shade of the spectrum of emotion . . .

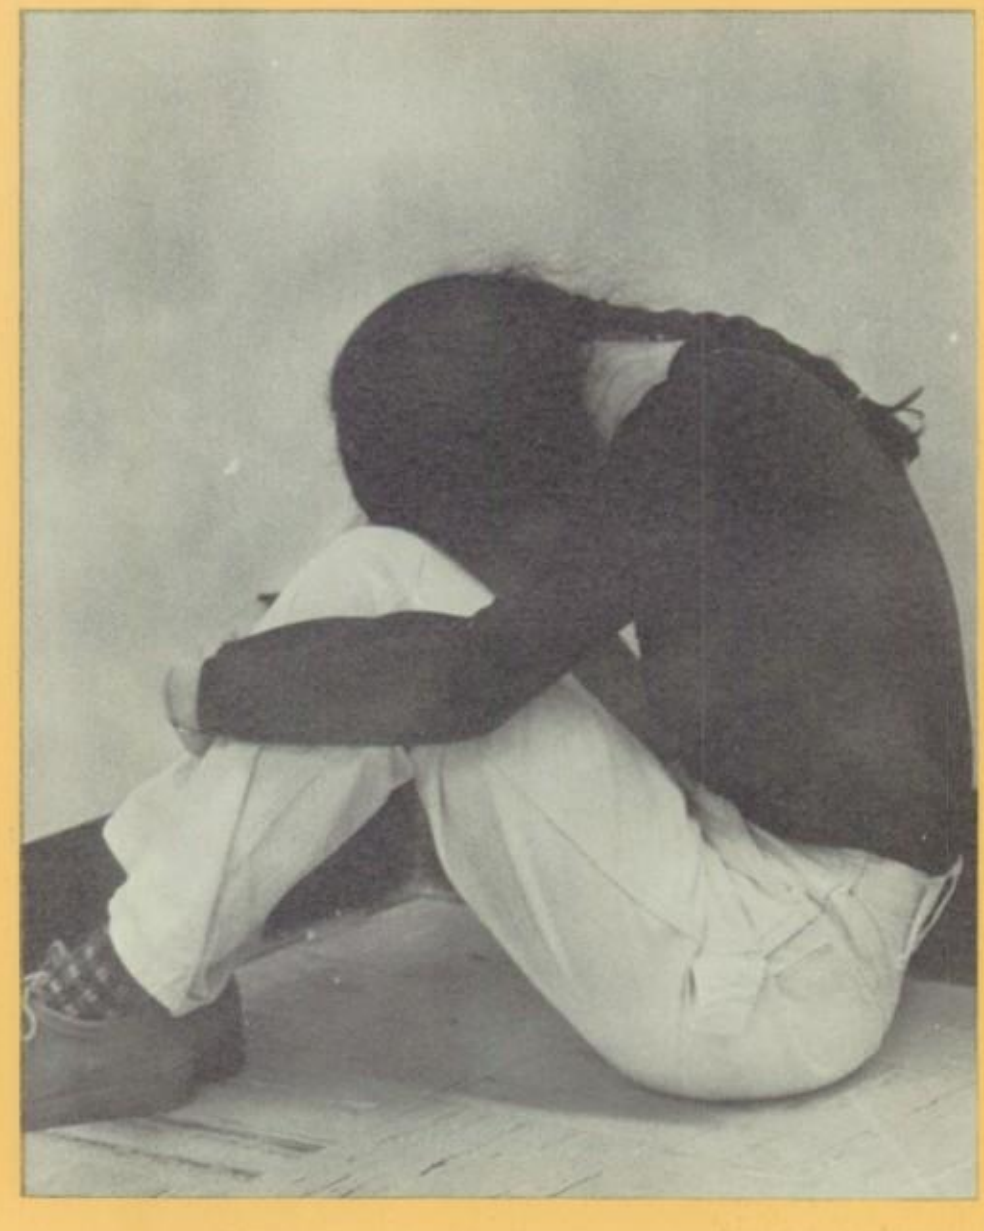


Karen Stefanick and Bob Laskodi

Sheila McKowne and Diane Malek



Alicia Weisbrot

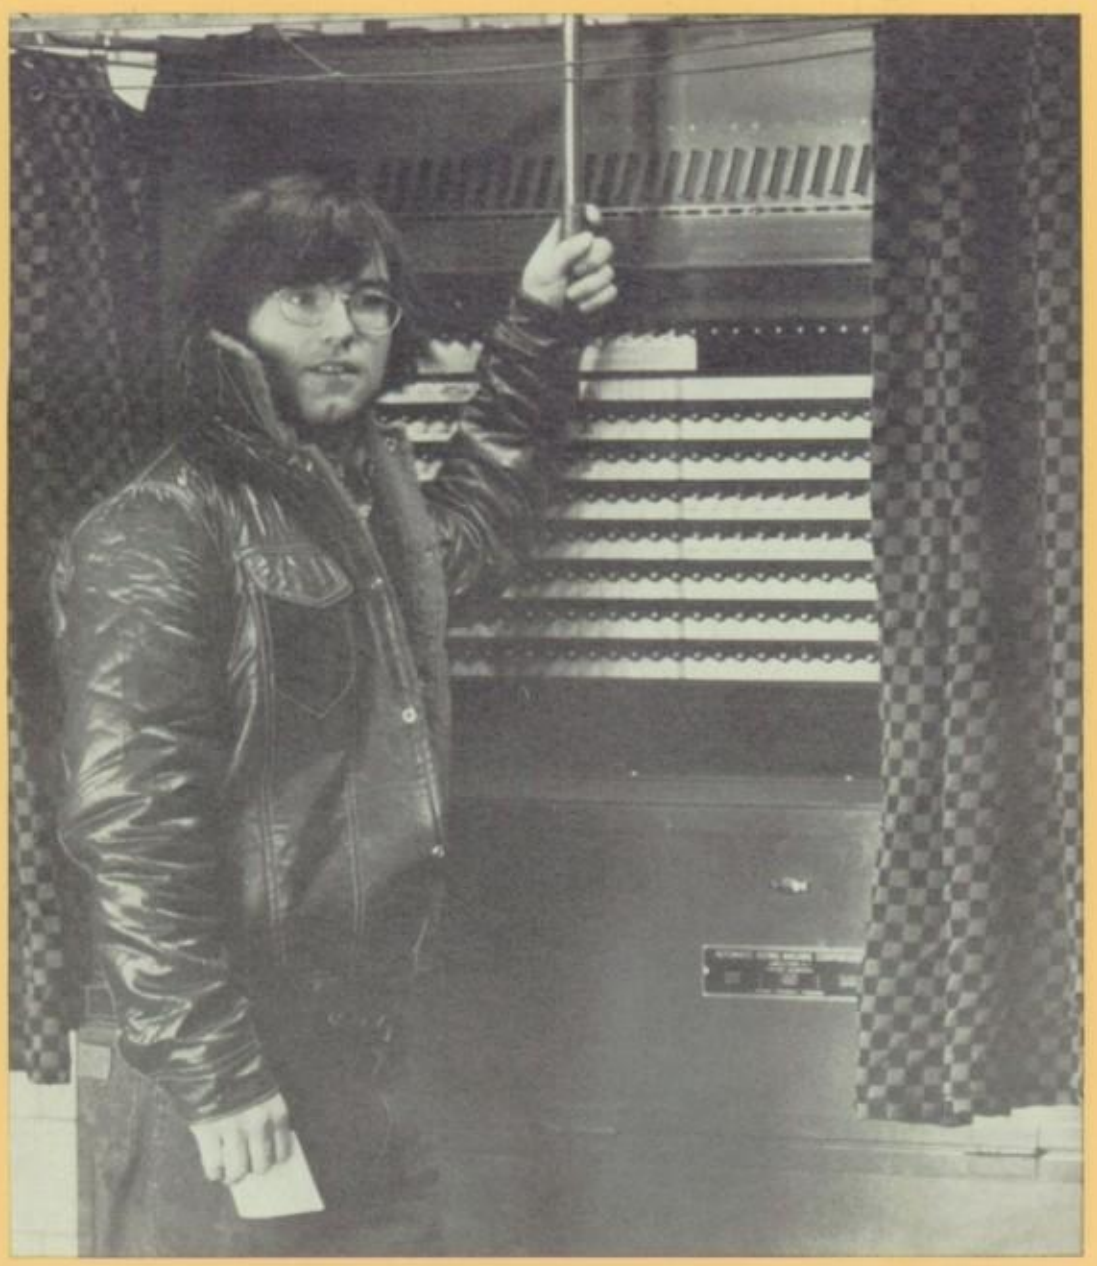


Sometimes we find our world expanding too quickly. How easily we become lost, frightened, confused. Disappointment, frustration and the strain of new and added responsibility threaten to overwhelm us. And, too often, the hand we need to reach for isn't there. So, forced to find answers in ourselves, we learn strength. Through this strength we gain confidence and security. We begin to better understand ourselves and those around us as our awareness of people and emotion expands.

Marc Gallanter, Lucille Zebrowski, Adele Schlesinger and Mitch Eisenberg.

Extending beyond oureslves, we question the world and involve ourselves in its doings. Bombarded with reports of everyday happenings, we cannot ignore the international conflicts, causes and achievements which shape our lives. Indignant and angry at the injustice, corruption and apathy around us, we vow to change the world.

Geri Kleinman greeting voters on Election Day.



Rich Fredericks

Concerned with liberty, honesty, and human welfare, we acutely feel our inability to affect the situations we see.

Yet, still we feel we must let our voice be heard and find action with which to express our views.

Israel support rally

With every new experience, we realize things about ourselves, about others and about the world. And this understanding is something that has been growing, which has developed slowly but steadily, until it suddenly bursts forth as something we've always known but only now become aware of.

STUDENT LIFE

Sports, organizations, events, and activities are all part of our life as a student. We want to know about ourselves — our potential, limitations and abilities — and so we join the football team, the Chronicle staff or the Drama Club. We want to know about the world around us — to be well informed and able to perform services for others — so we join the Political Science or Ecology Clubs, the library squad or run for Student Council.

We initiate this search for new experiences, taking advantage of the opportunity to belong to, and work with, a group. Each organization gives us the chance to both absorb and express. Through give-and-take we learn to grow. Our understanding and awareness widen, expanding to include new factors and ideas — and new talents for co-operation and responsibility.

Kick-Off Dance and Pep Rally

Kindling spirit in the hearts of Tiger fans, the pep rally (held September 21, 1973) attracted 400 Linden High students and set the scene for the following day's game against Cranford.

The colorguard, Tigerettes and twirlers performed their well-planned routines with grace and precision, while the cheerleaders demonstrated their new cheers. The rally concluded with the introduction of the 1973-74 football squad by Coach Anthony Muccia.

The band Odin provided entertainment for the subsequent dance.

Demonstrating the new colorguard routine are Bonnie Sue Duckman, Denise Byrnes, and Susan Powell.

Displaying their talent, LHS twirlers, Irene Drozd, Karen Werner, and Linda Austin.

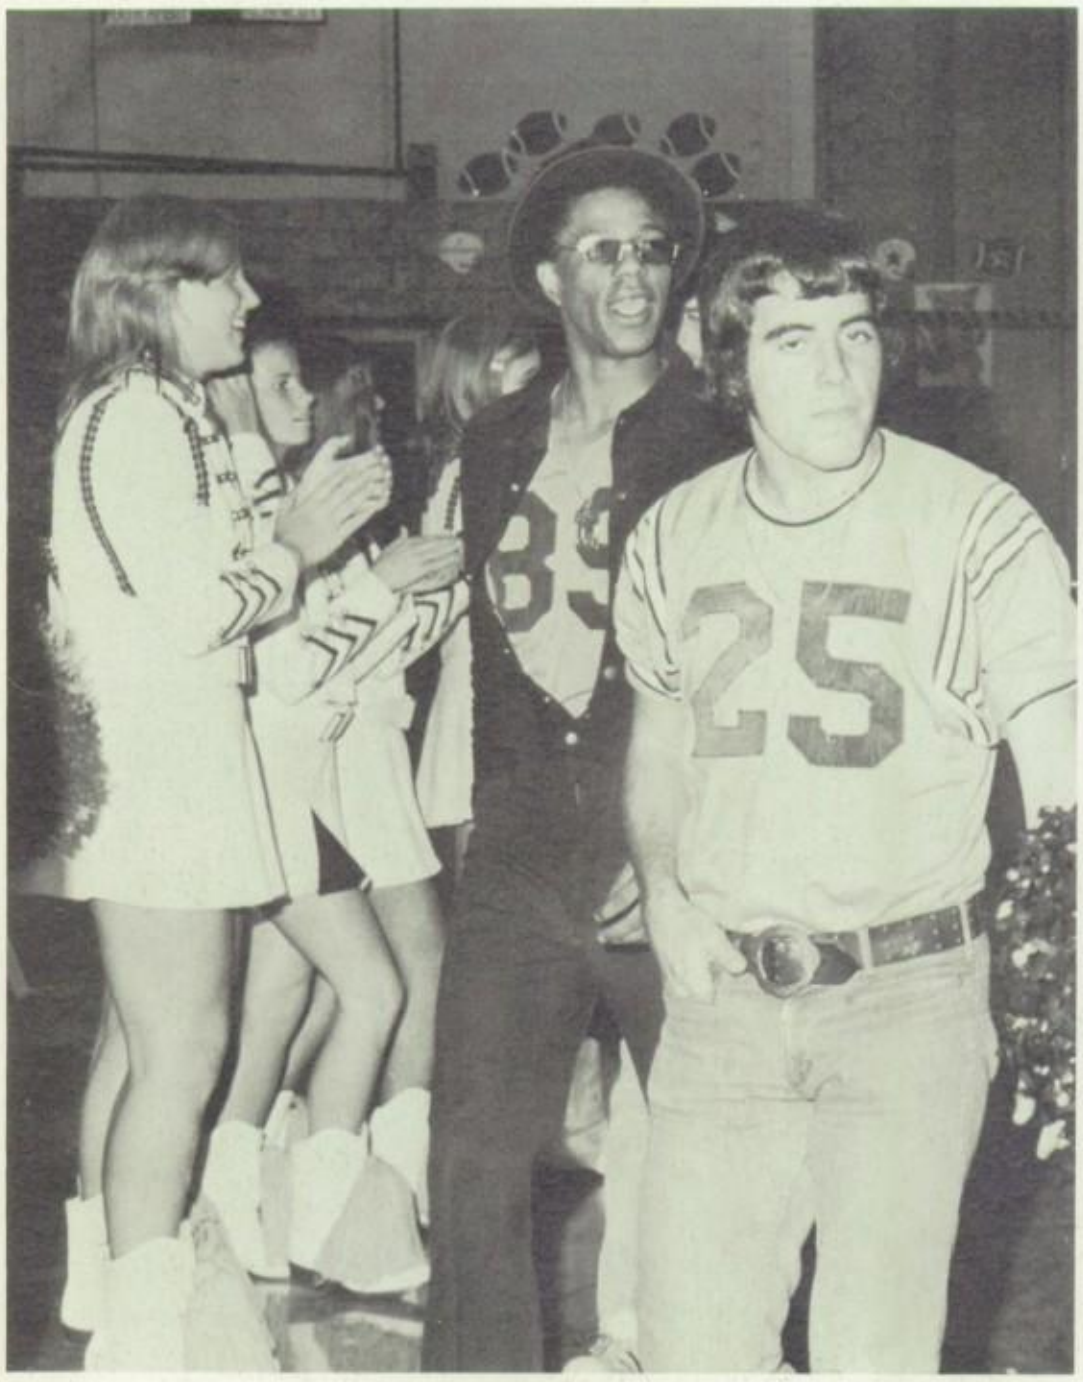
Judy Kimak, Lois Larosso, Jody Caton, and Kim Diaz, await the starting call.



The dance continues as the team leaves.

Dancing to the new routine is tigerette Maria Matusek.

Football

The 1973 football season was a disappointing one. Compiling a losing record for the second straight year, the team was plagued with indifference and internal strife.

Consistently the most popular team in Linden, the Tigers didn't live up to expectations. Despite the many returning letterman, the squad could only muster a 3-6 record.

The football team, averaging over 200 yards per game, were led by seniors Brian Barnes, Jim Barbarich, Wayne Hanns and co-captains Mike Pado and Wayne Jones. Barnes made the Second All-County Team, while Barbarich, Hanns, Jones and Junior quarterback Beriont received honorable mention.

The end of the football season brought about the resignation of Coach Anthony Muccia. Hopefully, though, his replacement will return the gridders to winning form.

Football games had an added attraction this year with the introduction of flag carriers. Created by Mrs. Rosivack, the squad gives more girls the opportunity to promote school spirit. The carriers took to the halftime field, where they twirled orange and black flags for the final five games of the season. The squad consisted of three seniors, four juniors, and one sophomore.

Nancy Turbett, Denise Barbarich, Pat Tomalavage, Cindy Bartus, Kim Taylor, Jackie Hemmings, Michelle Slivinski and Denise Herman.

Denise Byrnes, Carolyn Kubiak and Virginia Huff watch the game intently.

Selling refreshments, shakers and programs at home football games, the Boosterettes raised money for the Booster Club. At home basketball games pretzels were sold.

The Boosterettes also sponsor the Senior Booster Drive which is attended by all sports teams and pep squads. The year's best athlete is also honored at this end-of-the-year dinner.

Nancy Duffy and Debby Breidt were LHS's first twirler co-captains to go to twirling camp. This camp experience added to the squad's halftime routines. The squad consisted of three sophomores, three juniors, and four seniors. This year, six out of the ten learned to twirl the hoop baton.

Plans were made to acquire new uniforms for next year.

The school spirit got an even bigger boost this year with an increase in the number of girls on the cheerleading squad. The larger squad captured first place at the cheerleading camp. The talent which won the girls this award was exquisitely displayed by their ability to arouse the spirit of crowds who attended football and basketball games.

Third row: Debbie Marler, Gerri Rogers, Debbie Bartkus, Debbie Rolski, Tiger Mascot Pam Burns, Vicki Whitfield, Kathy Barny, Audrey Savas, Maureen Mayer.

The twenty-six girls who made up this year's Tigerettes aroused spirits at football games. Routines made up by co-captains Doreen Soltis and Darlene Trubilla showed the grace and the ability of the squad. Halftime songs that the girls danced to included Get It On, Proud Mary and Jesus Christ, Superstar.

In his customary heading stance, Ed Diamond waits for a sign from above . . . and the ball.

An increased bench and an ever-growing crowd of fans helped make this soccer season as popular as it was.

Soccer

Attaining the highest level of quality soccer in over three years, the Linden High soccer team compiled the best record of any fall sport this year. Sporting a 7-8-1 mark, the booters, coached by Paul Garrett, had their largest improvement in their much-needed, newly acquired scoring power. Leading the way in this department were sophomore Luis Garcia and junior Wieslaw Kwiecien. Garcia was named to the second All-Union-County soccer team, while Kwiecien, along with co-captain Ed Wolf and junior goalie Mike Battaglia, received honorable mention.

Also accounting for the successful change in the team's status, was the defense. Led by co-captains Ed Wolf and Chuck Sigmund, along with senior Ed Diamond and junior Dennis Mason, the defensive squad added depth to the '73 team. A strong bench further supported the expanded crew.

Experience and uniformity, lacking last year, completed the necessary requirements for a well-rounded squad. These additions enabled the soccer team to keep close with powerful Westfield and Union kickers and score heavily against Plainfield and Hillside.

Next year should bring LHS its most successful soccer season ever. With evergaining popularity, better administrative policies, a possible new playing field, hopeful recruits and experienced returnees, Linden High could be the area's new soccer power.

Moving the ball upfield against Union Catholic, center halfback Ed Wolf takes charge of the offense.

Basketball

Linden's Varsity Cagers put together a fantastic season this year and came up with an outstanding 22-3 log. After being ranked number one in the county all season long, with their position in the state fluctuating between number two and seven, Linden just could not manage to secure any championship titles. All three Tiger losses came in tournament play: bowing to Bayonne (Hillside Holiday event), to Union by two points (Union County Conference festival) and to East Orange in the finals of the State sectionals. Missing these major titles, the Tigers did capture the American Conference as a new member of the Watchung Conference.

Student's enthusiasm swelled as the team played during the season. Never seeming to lose a game, the Cagers overcame such area powerhouses as Ewing, Plainfield, and Weequahic. The team's success can be attributed heavily to the large number of veterans of the '73 County Championship Team returning to give Linden not only great power in all aspects of the game, but also experience in tourney play.

Among those outstanding players on the team, Al Bakunas and Larry McGhee proved especially consistant. Often receiving headline praise in local newspapers, Bakunas received a position on the New York Daily News All-Star Team, along with the Daily Journal's placing him on the All-Metropolitan team, the All-Union County Team, The All-Group 4 team, and The American Division of the All-Watchung Conference team and the All-State second team. Also receiving newspaper recognition, Larry McGhee earned a position on the Daily Journal's All-Group 4 first team, the All-Union County second team, the All-Metropolitan third team, and the American Division of the All-Watchung Conference team. Veon Lassiter also attained a position on the All-Group 4 second team.

Wrestling is one of the few sports which is an accurate measure of individual strength. Success is determined by each wrestler's stamina, co-ordination, endurance and mental attitude. Led by co-captains Rich Sauerwein and Gary Talbert, the L.H.S. grapplers wrestled their way to a record of 6-6. The new coach, Mr. Ted Thompson, advised the squad on additional leg movements which proved to be instrumental in their victories. The wrestlers practiced a grueling six days a week and dieted constantly to stay in top form.

Placing first in the Christmas tournament were Tom Scrutro, Woody Woodberry, and Tom Malossi; Rich Sauerwein and Gary Talbert placed second; and Billy Daniels and Jim Barbarich placed third. In the district tournament, Rich Sauerwein took third place.

Wrestling is beginning to receive its long overdue recognition, as evidenced by increased participation and attendance at matches. The returning matmen, combined with the '73 J. V. team, have high hopes for next year.

Bob Miller, who compiled a personal record of 8-1, is a bright varsity prospect for next year.

When the wrestling season arrived, the wrestling cheerleaders gave vocal support and boosted the grapplers' morale tremendously. Their presence and co-ordination was definitely an asset to the matches.

For another season the Linden High School Varsity Bowling team kept up its winning record. The team was led by Art Biesiada and Barry Kornspan, who tied for a high game of 246. Ranked number one in the county, the team went on to sweep away the title of Watchung Conference Champions.

Although the varsity squad has only been in existence for a period of two years, the team has been marked by consistent excellence. This year also marked a first in having a female on the team, Laurene Dering.

More boys than ever came out to compete in Intramural Football this year. Aiming for victory, teams of six players played twice a week under the supervision of Mr. Gerald Colabelli and Mr. Michael Gaines. Select students were also given the opportunity to referee the games.

The grand finale came when the Stoneheads and the Bullies, the two division champs, met. The Stoneheads were victorious by a score of 12-6. Although the field was limited in size by the Vo-Tech Building, there was no limit to the enthusiasm present.

Pressures for converting Girls' Field Hockey to a varsity sport were greater than ever this year. The team can no longer enjoy a friendly game. It is now serious competition. Opposing schools have varsity squads and varsity sports include vigorous daily practices. In contrast, Miss Topoleski provided a cheerful learning atmosphere where the team met weekly. The girls played intramurally to develop their field hockey skills. At the same time, the girls gained an enormous amount of experience by meeting the Berkley Heights, Cranford and Westfield squads. The future looks bright for a varsity team.

Girls' Basketball

Although the plans to convert the girls' basketball team from intramural to junior varsity failed, nearly sixty participants turned up each Thursday to join in the fun. Six teams played a round-robin tournament lasting for approximately ten weeks. Advisor Mrs. Alice Topoleski felt that the girls improved their skills outstandingly.

Once again, the Choir, Glee Club, and Girls' Ensemble added to the holiday spirit by performing at the annual Christmas program presented the evening of December 18th at Linden High School. In addition, the girls sang at the Spring Festival, held May 6th. The ensemble had many out-of-school performances, including the Teen Arts Festival at Soehl J. High School, March 5th; preliminary round of the State Teen Arts Festival at Union College, March 19th; and an audition for the Garden State Talent Expo at Kenilworth, March 20th. Mr. Kozlowski, choral director, brought a new phase to the music department this year by teaching guitar to interested girls. The many girls who entertained the school were greatly enriched by the music programs at Linden High School.

The music department refurbished its Marching and Concert Band this year through increased participation and improved morale. The administration helped with scheduling and the obtaining of new uniforms for next year's band. Band members bought winter jackets and received new music stands.

Comprising the tuba section are Bob Fuller, Mark Morro, Ed Diamond, and Mark Greenberg.

Majorette Kathy Spisak prepares to lead the band.

Mr. Wallace Schiller led the band through a busy year, including performances for the football games, the Halloween Parade, the Christmas program, the Spring Festival, and the Memorial Day Parade. Out-of-school activities included a trip to the Exxon building to kick off the United Way Campaign, and participation in the annual Home News Contest in which Linden received third-place honors, and the title of the most improved band.

Halloween

The annual Halloween Parade took place October 31 at 7:00. Many Linden High School students marched in the parade, although last year's disturbances ended the tradition of King and Queen. The night before, the Linden Recreation Commission, designing to keep students off the streets, sponsored a dance and talent show in the high school gymnasium. After the talent show, the crowd danced to the music of The Last Exit until 10:30.

Holiday Season

To celebrate the holiday season, the French, German, and Spanish Clubs held holiday parties. Each club enjoyed traditional seasonal foods. The band and choir worked diligently and presented their holiday music at a Parent-Teacher Association meeting December 27. Although the energy crisis meant fewer lights in and around the city, a two-week winter recess caused spirits to soar throughout the holiday season.

Audio-Visual Aides

The audio-visual squad delivered audio-visual equipment to teachers and kept it in good running condition. The same boys composed the stage crew, which operated the lights and controlled the acoustics during programs presented in the auditorium. Because of the lack of assemblies, however, the crew did not have as much work as in past years.

Drama Club

Despite the energy crisis curtailment of field trips, the Drama Club displayed its resoucefulness by organizing a highly successful program.

Mrs Laing and the club's officers planned and coordinated the following activities: a makeup demonstration by Mrs. Williams, followed by a cider and doughnut party; an appropriate Christmas play in which all members participated; charades and other activities; and a trip to see Buck County's version of Mice and Men.

The club-sponsored play The Diary of Adam and Eve was also a success.

"The Diary of Adam and Eve"

In the garden, Eve flaunts her flowery creation.

On March 19th and 20th, the members of the Drama Club presented "The Diary of Adam and Eve."

The role of Eve, well portrayed by Ann Monico, was in accord with the excellent acting of Mike Leskowitz as Adam, and Donald Dowdye as the snake.

Music for this modern version of the well-known Biblical story was provided by Martha Salzmann.

The success of this entire presentation is credited to the leadership of Mrs. Laing and to the Drama Club for their diligent work.

The snake entices Eve with "The Apple of Knowledge."

Out of paradise, Adam contemplates the future.

Debate Club

This year the format of the Debate Club was expanded to inculde poetry reading and dramatic interpertation. During the Fine Arts Forensic Tournament at West Long Branch, N. J., Don Dowdye and Dave Silovitch took part in a poetry reading event. Earlier in the year, four club members participated in a form on poverty at which they discussed the problems of the impoverished and various solutions.

The Black Renaissance Club stressed the importance of racial harmony and worked to help black students with their studies. Having heard that some black students are hesitant to go to the National Honor Society to obtain a tutor, club members started a tutoring service. They also planned a dance, the proceeds of which will go to the fight against sickle cell anemia. Club members expressed the opinion that their club is highly improved as compared to former clubs.

French Club

Guided by their enthusiastic advisor, Mrs. Jean McKeown, members of the French Club combined their talents with lots of hard work to create a most successful cultural club. At the Christmas party the students presented their own interpretation of The Night Before Christmas and of a Marx Brothers' sketch in French, and served their version of the traditional French fondue.

In the spring, club members furthered their knowledge of French history by planning several skits in which famous French and Canadian people were portrayed. They also put on a very successful presentation of Le Petit Prince. To aid in financing some of their activities, members sold Christmas items and notecards.

German Club

One of the German Club's most creative ventures was its annual Christmas party. For the first time in the club's history, students videotaped festivities. Each of the classes presented its own Christmas skit in German, and afterwards everyone feasted on the German refreshments which the students had prepared themselves. In order to raise money for their activities, club members sold German candles.

At the end of the year, seven of the club's members were elected to Delta Epsilon Phi, a national honorary German fraternity for high school students with high "A" averages in German.

Spanish Club

The Spanish Club continued this year to acquaint its members with the cultural aspects of the various Spanish-speaking nations. Early in the year the club visited two art museums and dined at a Spanish restaurant in New York. During the holiday season, the club also held a traditional Spanish Christmas party, highlighted by the breaking of a pinata.

Political Science Club Speakers

The Political Science Club, in an attempt to interest club members in national, state, and local politics, hosted numerous guest speakers for afternoon meetings. Among them, Union County Prosecuter, Karl Asch discussed the Judicial System and touched upon such topics as drug and law inforcement and legalized gambling at a November 7th appearance. John T. Gregorio, Mayor of Linden and Assemblyman of Union County on December 19th fielded questions from the audience, concerning such issues as traffic control and the effects of the energy crisis on the citizens of Linden. George Gallup Jr., President of the American Institute of Public Opinion, described the various sampling and poll taking methods utilized by his internationally-known organization. Representing the old-line politician, Congressional representative, Edward J. Patten of New Jersey's 15th district spoke to a special assembly on the world energy crisis, the status of the American government, and the possibility of President Nixon's impeachment. February 27, State Senator John J. Fay Jr. spoke on New Jersey's state government. The Middlesex County legislator stated his opposition to the construction of an oil port off the New Jersey coastline, and announced that he also favored the impeachment of President Nixon.

Political Science Club

The Political Science Club sponsored a variety of guest speakers and activities designed to enhance students' political awareness. The speakers included Union County Prosecutor Karl Asch, a representative of the then gubernatorial candidate Brendon Byrne, U.S. Senator Edward J. Patten, State Senator John J. Fay, Jr. and George Gallup of the Gallup Poll. Discussions were also directed towards Watergate and the resignation of Vice President Spiro Agnew. The club members visited the state legislature in Trenton during an early spring session.

Energy Crisis

Due to the many shortages, Wendy Farber believes in carrying her supermarket goods without paper bags.

The energy crisis had a definite effect on all students at LHS. As temperatures were lowered to 68°, students made sweaters a regular part of their wardrobe and the "layered look" became more than just a fashion craze. Some students, more senstitive to the unaccustomed chill, found it necessary to don coats. Students were especially upset by the cancellation of class and club trips and the postponement of dances. Ski buffs were disappointed to find that the Ski Club was suspended in accordance with the Board of Education's mandate to limit fuel consumption. The basketball and wrestling teams, however, were allowed the use of buses for their competitions.

Despite the eerieness of walking to school in predawn, as a result of the newly adopted year-round daylight savings time, students were able to find at least one enjoyable result of the energy crisis. Throughout the day, students observed gas lines which completely surrounded the school. Watching sunrise and moonset became favorite pastimes during homeroom.

Ecology Club

The main target of this year's Ecology Club was a project entitled "Where Do We Go From Here?", financed by a mini-grant from Trenton. This project was a sequel to "A Study of Pollution in the Linden Area", a slide presentation developed by the Ecology Club two years ago. While the original project viewed pollution negatively, the new project was optimistic as it viewed improvements in the pollution situation. At regular club meetings, members also saw a variety of slide presentations and discussed the energy crisis.

National Honor Society

Composed of students who have shown excellence in academic and leadership areas, the National Honor Society functions as a service organization. Tutoring, the main service performed by NHS, provides LHS students with the chance to receive continuing out-of-class help. This year NHS was larger than ever, allowing more students to participate in the program.

DECA

Two fund-raising projects during the holiday season launched the Distributive Education Clubs of America (DECA) into a very productive year. DECA is the only national club program directly affiliated with Distributive Education. Normally consisting of only seniors, this year's program opened its chapter to juniors. In March, the state conference was held in Atlantic City. The funds earned during the year were used for the D. E. Employer-Employee banquet at the Coachman Inn in May.

The year came to a close with the organization's annual dinner.

Health Careers Club

The Health Careers Club started the year in September with its annual cake sale. The members, students interested in any part of the medical profession, learned much this year through lectures. The talks, ranging from pharmacy to optometry, consisted of in-depth discussions, and audio-visual demonstrations.

The club year ended with the National Health Careers Careers Convention in Atlantic City.

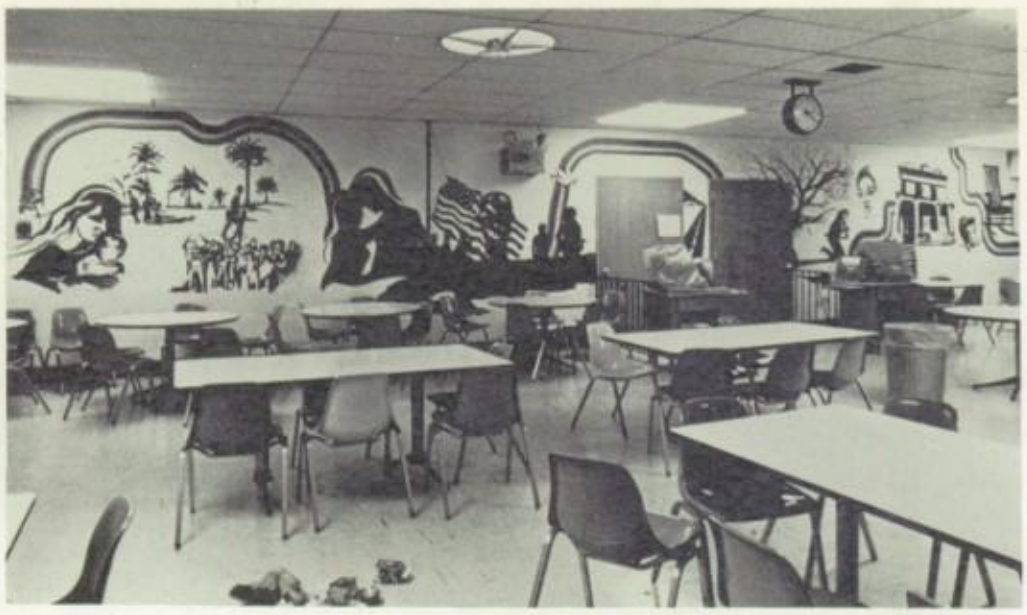
Art Service League



The completed cafeteria mural.

An Art Service League this year was formed to give recognition to the various students of LHS who contributed their artistic abilities to the requests of teachers, the PTA, and the school in general. These students, created bulletin boards, posters, and numerous other projects. Other groups of art students got together during the course of the year to work on designing an emblem for the Linden Cultural Affairs Committee. A group helped brighten the Holiday Season by painting the windows of the Community State Bank. Yet another group worked to get permission and to complete a large-scale mural on the Cafeteria wall during Christmas vacation. The mural, portraying man from birth to death, greatly enhanced the lunch room.

Library Aides

The library aides consisted of students who gave up free periods to assist the librarians with their duties. These included helping both the student and the librarian in locating books, shelving new books for student use, checking out books, collecting fines, and stamping student passes. Most of the members had had previous experience as library aides.

Office Aides

The office aides were students who devoted their free periods to help the main office, health, and guidance offices. Their duties included delivering notices and passes, filing and some typing.

Sophomore Council

Through the guidance of Mr. Hoffman, the Sophomore Council was able to achieve another profitable year. This was done by means of two car washes and the selling of personalized stationery. The funds obtained from these projects are carried along into the Junior and Senior class treasuries.

Junior Council

A sense of apathy was present at the onset of this year's Junior Council. Since no one sought the candidacy of treasurer, secretary Denise Barbarich assumed the roles for both offices. The only activity, the sponsoring of the movie, American Graffiti, seemed to be channeled toward increasing the treasury's funds to reduce the cost of the Junior Prom, held May 2.

Senior Council

Senior Council conceived many favorable ideas at the beginning of this year, but, unfortunately, only a small portion were carried out. The Council did, however, resume several fund-raising projects: the selling of candy and of Tiger Telegrams, the Senior Faculty Game, held March 26, in which the teachers defeated the students for the 25th time with a score of 63-58, and a Barn Dance held on March 29. The monies received helped defray the cost of the senior Prom and banquet.

In previous school years, Student Council has often been labeled inactive. However, for perhaps the first time, the Council truly initiated projects for the benefit of the entire school, and innovative ideas became reality. Through the labor of some volunteers, who devoted five days of their Christmas vacation, the girls' lavs took on an appearance of respectability. These students scrubbed and repainted walls in an effort to remove graffiti.

Student Council also sold booster stickers to help pay for the rental of voting machines and National Council dues, as well as to instill school spirit.

Sharon Twaskas wonders how many coats of paint will conceal the graffiti.

The epitome of education, Eddie Diamond lends a helping hand.

Photo Staffs

With the relocation of the print shop in the vo-tech school, this year's photographers found themselves facing a shortage of supplies and adequate darkroom facilities. This, together with the total absence of a photography club to help train the inexperienced photographer, seemed to doom the photographic aspects of the school publications. However, despite these impediments, the creativity of the photographers remained undaunted and their work enhanced the quality of all three school publications.

Ed Eilbacher and Martha Salzmann, co-editors of In Tenebris, confer about some literary contributions.

In Tenebris

In Tenebris, Linden High School's literary magazine, truly exhibits the artistic, poetic, and writing abilities of the entire student body. Unlike other school publications, In Tenebris encompasses the talents of the entire school, not just a single staff. However, without the hard work of the editorial and circulation staffs, and art and photography co-ordinators, the contributing students would never see their works in print. This year, as in the past, the most qualified students were chosen for the editorial staffs. Toiling long and hard hours, these students, advised by Mrs. Engleman and Miss Demkowicz and the co-editors, Ed Eilbacher and Martha Salzmann, chose what they felt were the best and most representative examples of creative poetry, literature, and art work.

Chronicle

With staff interest and membership waning, the editors of the Chronicle continued to write most of the school paper without staff assistance. Combating tremendous odds, including the misplacement by the printer of one of the eight issues, the Chronicle has tried to enlighten students to the humor, horror, and happenings of high school life. Having written editorials on administrative policies, students' dress, and election reforms, the editorial board also published a political awareness poll researched by the Political Science club. Such monthly columns as "Life in Linden", "True-Life Confessions", and "Gizmo's Travels" continued, covering the Little Miss Linden Contest, a tattoo parlour, the happenings on a gas line, LHS Graffiti, the movie of the year The Exorcist an eyewitness account of Linden's first streaking.

Having won the George H. Gallup award for the second consecutive year, Chronicle continued its membership in the Columbia Scholastic Press Association, the National Scholastic Press Association, and the Quill and Scroll.

Cynosure

Providing a concise yearbook that was a unique representation of the school year was the goal of the 1974 Cynosure staff. Having attended the Columbia Scholastic Press Association Yearbook Conference in October, senior members enjoyed the opportunity to study the various methods of making an effective yearbook. The staff contended with numerous problems ranging from a new photographer and an enormous staff, to a rising printing bill due to the existing paper shortage. In the process of overcoming these obstacles, tempers flared often, but ideas still flowed.

Aided by the scheduled first-period working sessions in the publications room, the staff formulated the theme and cover, designed layouts, identified pictures, and wrote numerous captions. Editors experienced new-found feelings of panic, terror and inspiring fear as the various deadlines approached. After completion of the visual aspects, the staff continued working on other details awaiting the unveiling of the 1974 Cynosure.

Looking for some help with their problems, junior members confront Editor Neal Gordon during an early morning meeting.

The various publication staffs this past year discovered a common quality among themselves. The staffs realized that they all had to suffer the same strife of meeting deadlines, and that relief and recreation was in great need. Joining forces, the groups socialized at picnics, lunches, days off, and at a holiday party highlighted by the "orange and purple yearbook" cake. After meeting all the deadlines for the literary magazine, the yearbook, and senior editors initiated the first annual publications relief party complete with their own awards.

Chronicle Advertising

With the cost of printing the Chronicle on the rise, the advertising department was relied upon to earn necessary additional funds. During the months of September and October, staff members solicited ads from local merchants.

Additional ads were received later in the year from colleges and the army recruiting service. The ads, priced according to size and amount of issues, were designed by the editors. However, because student participation on the advertising staff was minimal this year and since there was no business manager, most of the work was left for the all-encompasing editors.

CHRONICLE ADVERTISING STAFF: Eleaine Weilandics, Maureen Rocks, Buddy Corleone, Jerry Gismo, Neal Gordon, JoAnna Makuch.

Cynosure Advertising

It is the job of the Cynosure advertising staff to contact local businessmen and offer them the chance to place an advertisement in the yearbook. The money raised from the ads makes up the difference between the subcriptions and the printing bill. Ads are also sold to homerooms and individual groups.

In Tenebris Circulation

The circulation staff of In Tenebris performed the tedious and almost thankless task of taking orders, collecting money, and distributing the magazine.

These people were an integral part of the staff. Without their help and hard work the literary-art magazine would not have been able to reach such a wide audience.

Although subscription fees for the eight issues were lowered a nickel to $1.25, the Chronicle's profits decreased. The circulation staff spent many late hours after school folding papers. Also selling and distributing Chronicles during homeroom periods and at the junior high schools, the staff proved indispensable, but still much of the work and problems were left in the hands of the editors.

In Review

In the few months that comprise a school year, so many events, happenings and innovations take place. Yet, this short period is only a link in the continual and ever-changing chain of time. Inevitably, we look back and attempt to gain a perspective of the occurances which have transpired. And, always, those events take on a clearer and more definite shape as time goes on. We are close to all these happenings now, but, as the years pass, we shall realize more and more their effects on our lives and on the shaping of history.

WATERGATE

The year of 1973-74 has been perhaps the most crucial in all our political history. Our 37th President, Richard Nixon, has been faced with the scandal which threatens him with impeachment or resignation.

Beginning with what has been called an "unimportant," third-rate burglary, Watergate has evolved into a cycle of corruption and deception. We, as Americans, cannot help but feel disillusionment and a new wariness for governmental powers and the guardians of public trust. We have seen honor and law disregarded and immoral atrocities committed under the guises of "executive priviledge" and "national security." Illegal break-ins, the Plumber group, enemies lists, indictments of President Nixon's top advisors, and political vindictiveness through such federal agencies as the IRS and FBI are only a few examples of the misused power of which we have been made aware.

Ferreted out by our country's still dependable legislative and judicial processes, these crimes led to further discoveries of dishonest and questionable activities. Through the Senate Watergate Committee, headed by the colorful Sam Ervin, and Judge J. Sirica's Grand Jury and with the aid of special prosecutor Archibald Cox, Elliot Richardson and capable journalists, the complex story of Watergate has unfolded.

Following the discovery of the famed Watergate tapes, and subsequent resignations of Cox and Richardson, President Nixon again found a crisis facing him. The tapes, have been secured after numerous court battles, proved to be fewer in number than expected and contained mysterious gaps. Said by one governmental advisor to be caused by "influences of an evil nature," the gaps served to further test the public's confidence in the President. When electronics experts' opinions indicated that the tape in question had been erased intentionally at least five times, the story of "Rosemary's boo-boo" unfolded.

This is as far as we are able to report on the Watergate saga, with the question of our President's fate yet to be decided.

THE AGNEW AFFAIR

More weeks of shock proved to be in store for the American public with the criminal conviction and world-embarassing resignation of Vice-President Spiro T. Agnew. Feelings of disillusionment again ran high as the man thought to be sincere in his doctrines of law and order, and potentially the next president, resigned in disgrace.

Faced with a situation unique in our history, a means for choosing a succeeding vice-president was found in the 25th amendment. The situation was resolved by the Presiden't nomination of a vice-presidential candidate, subject to Congressional approval. Thus, Gerald Ford, House minority-leader, became vice-president.

ARAB-ISRAELI WAR

Once again there was war in the Middle East. But, this time, it was the Arabs who took the Israelis by suprise, beginning the three weeks of heavy fighting of the "Yom Kippur War". Through the diplomacy of Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and the cooperation of Israeli and Arab leaders, a settlement of troop and land withdrawals was brought about. Situations in Israel remained troubled, though, with Golda Meir's ponderance of resignation and the threat of the country's return to pre-1967 borders.

ENERGY CRISIS

In an attempt to force world opinion in their favor, Arab leaders united to control World oil supplies. Demands that Israel return territories seized in the 1967 war suddenly seemed reasonable to Japan and West European countries starving for fuel and facing a bleak winter. Although the United States, the Arab's main target, gets most of its oil elsewhere, we still felt the pinch of a 10% reduction in our oil supply. In answer to President Nixon's request for co-operation by the public in meeting the energy crisis, 55 mph speed limits became mandatory. Use of public and private electricity was cut, resulting especially in a darker Christmas season, thermostats across the nation were turned down, and gas stations were closed on Sundays in an attempt to conserve all forms of fuel.

NEW JERSEY

On the local scene, New Jersey adopted the odd-even day system of purchasing gasoline in an attempt to shorten the lines of panic buyers. This ruling was perhaps the first evidence of the ability of newly-elected Governor Brendan Byrne to cope with the problems of the state. Having received the largest victory of any gubernatorial election in state history, overtones of Watergate crept up. Some felt Byrne's victory to be a reaction to Watergate, while others maintained that individual votes of confidence won him the election. Nevertheless, Democratic landslides in upcoming elections remained a threat to the Republican party.

With oil supplies increasing as the Arab oil embargo lifted, the energy scare ended with the coming of spring. Governor Byrne revoked the odd-even day rationing system and more and more gas stations remained open on Sundays. Unfortunately, gas prices remained at their inflated levels.

SHORTAGES

In addition to the shortage of gasoline, we on the East Coast faced rising prices on bread, paper and lumber, milk and meat as a result of shortages in these products. A toiletpaper scare made many Americans realize just how much we have come to rely on certain "luxuries". Inflation and the devaluation of the dollar abroad, coupled with shortages and mass employee cutbacks by industries relying on petroleum products, presented a gloomy outlook for the American economy. Time has yet to prove the ultimate effect of these problems.

KIDNAPPINGS

Political terrorism, borrowed from Arab tactics, took the form of widespread political kidnappings this year. Patricia Hearst, daughter of millionaire Randolf Hearst, was held by the Symbionese Liberation Army for six million dollars worth of food for California welfare recipients.

South American groups were also paid ransom sums (which were usually demanded for welfare reasons, such as the construction of a hospital) for the safe return of American corporate heads.

*between September 1973 and March 1974

SKY-LAB

In the recurring saga of the space age, successive teams of U.S. astronauts posted themselves above the earth in the orbiting space station Skylab. This phase of NASA exploration, although less thrilling than previous expeditions, proved man capable of living in space and laid the groundwork for future, more extensive, explorations.

SPORTS

This year, although filled with crises and traumas, also contained events of a happier nature.

In the field of sports, the entire world awaited the tying of Babe Ruth's all-time home-run record by Atlanta Brave Hank Aaron.

At the climax of the battle of the sexes at the Houston Astrodome in September, Billie Jean King proved the aging Bobbie Riggs to be the loud mouth he is.

Willie Mays retired from the game he loved and Mohammed Ali returned triumphant in his bout with heralded Joe Frazier.

In the limelight of entertainment, films reached their highest popularity in the past ten years. Hits such as the moralistic and relevant Serpico and the sensational The Exorcist — which set off cravings for the occult and an exorcism frenzy — helped make the year successful. Nostalgia reigned king as was evident by such movies as Academy award-winner The Sting, Paper Moon, American Graffiti, and the re-making of The Great Gatsby.

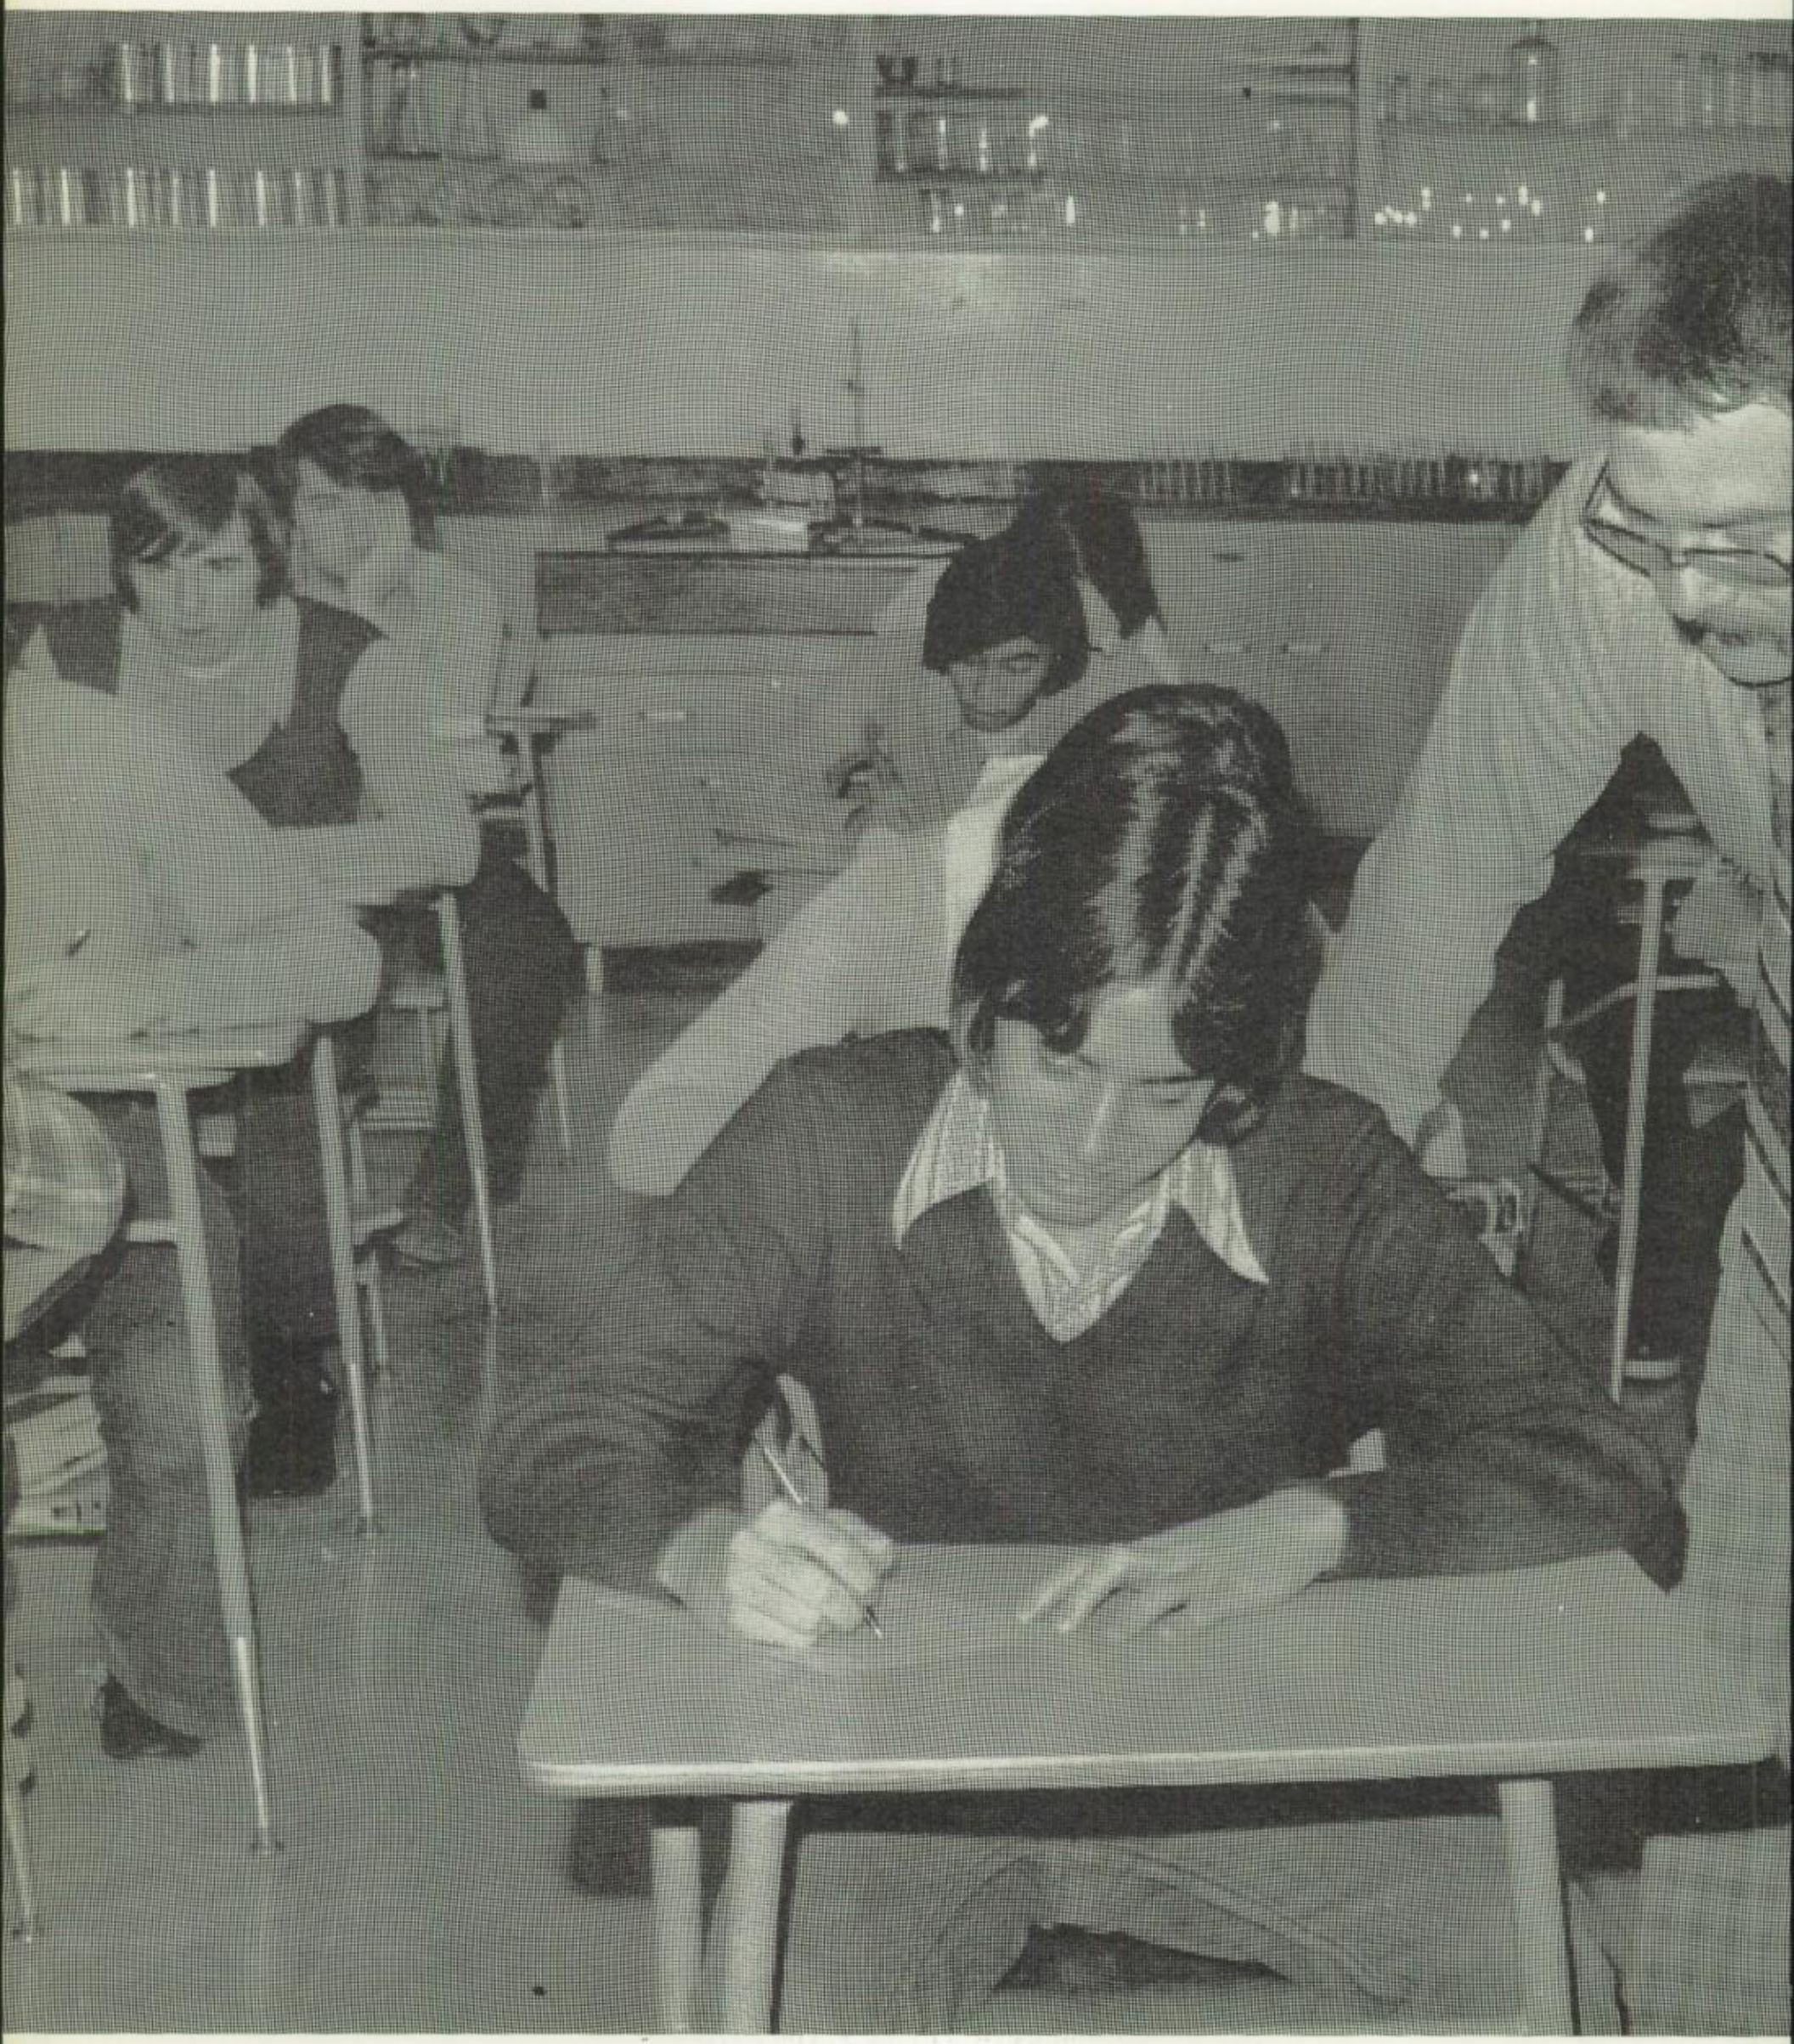
The music world saw the rise of many new stars this year. Veteran vocalists such as Maria Muldaur, Melissa Manchester, Jackson Browne and Bonnie Rait finally reached substantial, though perhaps only fleeting, popularity. Another performer of many years, Stevie Wonder, received recognition for his considerable talent by winning both the critical and popular Grammy awards. Perhaps the most outstanding music happening of the year, though, was Bob Dylan's cross-country tour. Fans thronged his concerts and set off a wave of a Dylan revival despite critics remarks that Dylan performed almost perfunctory, lacking the strength of feeling that he once had. But the Dylan revival was only part of the huge nostalgia craze which swept American culture this year. Performers such as Bette Midler and the Pointer Sisters attracted many a follower with their campy clothes, and modified renditions of songs from the 30's and 40's.

Fans of all types of music felt shock and loss at the tragic, untimely death of Jim Croce. His sincerity and spontaneity, evident in all his recordings, attracted the admiration of countless people.

FASHION

As is to be expected of every year, the style and dress of students were unique to this school term, Jeans and short sweaters, jeans and tailored shirts, jeans and danskins were standard. Baggies retained their popularity, along with skinny belts. Handdryers, for many students, became indespensible to keep their shorter haircuts properly styled. Perhaps the most outstanding feature of this year's clothes, besides the outrageous costs, was the incredible popularity of platform and heeled shoes. Students stumbled around school in shoes built up over six inches, ranging in color from lemon yellow to passionate purple. Shoes up to seven tones, with socks to match, were common.

The LHS population always presents an interesting and complete spectrum of new and old styles, allowing a freedom and flexibility of dress that is both comfortable and economical.



ACADEMICS

Our formal education is an important means by which we expand our awareness of self and world. Our teachers are instructors and guides, presenting us with new things to see and new ways to see them. They help to develop our thinking and our appreciation of the beauties around us — the beauties of the sciences and arts, of thought, and of man himself.

Administration

In keeping the school running smoothly, the administration must cope with numerous responsibilities. Scheduling and supervision of suspension and detention are only a few of these duties.

With the opening of the Vocational-Technical school, Mr. Herman Mopsick found his responsibilities as principal somewhat increased. Mr. Stuart McEwen and Mr. Joseph Placa settled down for their second year as administrative assistants. As assistant principal, Mr. McEwen concerned himelf primarily with student scheduling. Vice-principal Placa found it necessary to discontinue teaching mathematics in order to keep up with demands of his work.

Mrs. Florence Casale concerned herself with her usual administrative duties which included supervision of all student activities.

Guidance

The usual responsibilities occupied the guidance department this year. The most time-consuming of these, perhaps, was the counselling of senior students in the areas of careers and colleges, which included transcripts to various universities and business schools. Counsellors became familiar with their students and up-dated records through regular visits with them. Rearrangement of schedules and assistance in course selection were also among the services performed by this department. Counsellors often proved indispensible to troubled students who sought their guidance and advice.

Foreign Languages

As the result of student disinterest, non-credit courses in Italian and Hebrew were discontinued this year. For the first time, however, first-year classes in French, Spanish and German were offered. Taking advantage of the opportunity to initiate a language or begin a second, enough students elected first-year languages that one class each of French, Spanish, and German was created.

Seniors retain the elective courses, which range from Creative Writing to Literature of England.

Members of the English department continued as advisors for the various school publications, offering the various staffs assistance when needed.

Mathematics

Math courses remained basically the same this year, though some minor changes were made in general math courses to accommodate the needs of vocational students. As of yet, there are no courses, except senior shop math, which deal particularly with technical mathematics. Individual teachers, however, did their best to lean toward students' needs. It is expected that such technical courses will be initiated in the future for students in all grade levels.

Many students again elected advanced math courses, choosing such subjects as calculus, trigonometry and computer programming.

The State Board of Education resolved that all schools in the state are to convert to the metric system by 1976. Grammar school students will now be taught linear and liquid measure in the metric units that most high school students have encountered in the sciences.

Science

As a result of student demand, courses in advanced biology and chemistry were reinstated in the curriculum this year. Both courses provided students with extensive lab work. A pH meter donated by industry furnished students with another precise, sophisticated instrument to add to their available equipment.

Team-taught bio-chem, earth science and oceanography remained popular as specialized courses which offer something different from the standard biology, chemistry, or physics courses.

General changes have begun to appear in the area of business education. Rather than dealing strictly with business majors, teachers found more and more college prep students filling seats in both typing and steno classes.

Regular business students were given the chance to specify in secretarial fields through courses in business law and technical typewriting. These courses cover the fundamentals of law as they concern the businessman, consumer and individual, and such technical principles as formulas, graphs and charts.

Fine Arts

Keeping up with new techniques and progressive methods seems to be the note for this year's fine arts classes. In the Foods Department, food preparation and nutrition were the basic areas covered. Concepts of food procesing were also touched upon. Students in sewing classes advanced, as usual, at their own pace. Although many students transferred to the commercial arts course in the Vo-Tech school, a substantial number of art majors still remained at the high school. Most of these students deal with art on a more personal basis and plan to continue in areas other than commercial art.

Health

Driver's theory replaced first aid as the Health II course with first aid planned as a Health III course. This year, though, both sophomores and juniors had driver's theory. Senior Health continued as a modified Family Living course.

Behind-the-wheel driving was hampered by the Chrysler strike, resulting in only one car being available until well into November. The two new cars on order finally arrived, giving students a greater opportunity to practice driving skills.

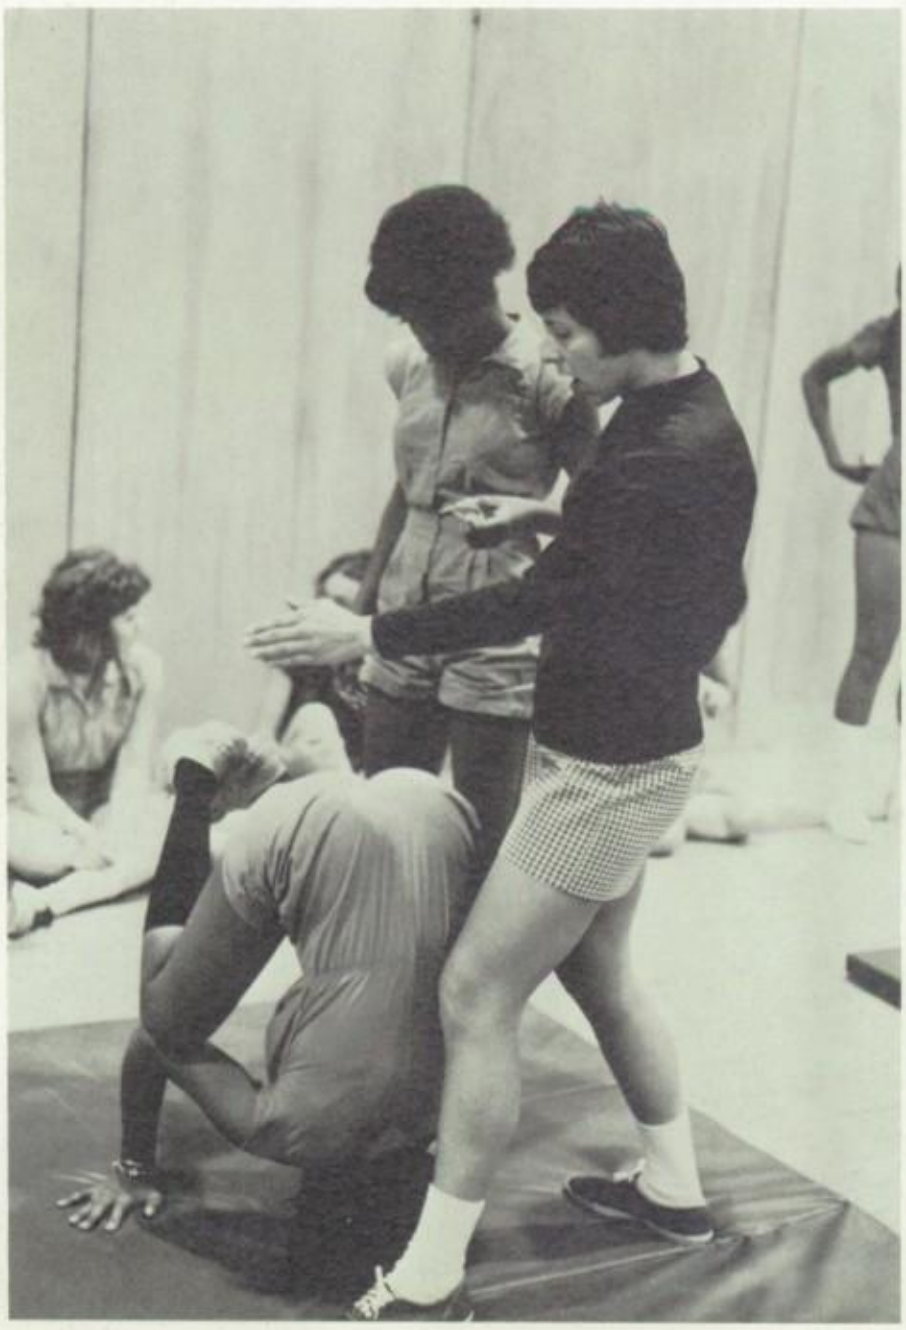
Physical Education

Four periods a week of gym still proved a problem for students and instructors alike. Overcrowding was somewhat relieved but classes never-the-less remained too large for ideal teaching.



Mrs. Rosivack guides Pat Morgan from a tripod into a headstand.

Mrs. Top observes during a skill test, as Pat Hammel spots.

School efficiency was maintained by the various service departments this year. Librarians kept the library in good order, making sure students returned their books on time. Several new books were purchased in an effort to keep up with expanding student interests.

Supplying the school with educational films, the A.V. Department was often the source of much welcome relief from routine classwork. Projectors and screens were kept in good working order by this department.

The office secretaries found themselves with additional work as a result of the vo-tech school's opening. Absentee sheets, headed by witty aphorisms, proved, as usual, a source of daily inspiration.

Cafeteria workers and matrons were the friendly faces who served food and helped keep the tables clean. Operation of the newly installed milk-shake machine added to their duties.

Custodians have divided their services between high school and vo-tech school, keeping both schools clean and in general good repair. Thanks to the unending work of these groups, the needs of the school are well taken care of.

Vocational Technical School

To fulfill expanding needs in education, the Linden Area Vocational and Technical School opened its doors to four hundred students this September. The school, completed after three years, was built in answer to the growing demand for highly skilled technical workers.

Thirteen self - sufficient, modern shops have been designed to give students full knowledge of the machines, tools and operations of each trade. Generally, each course consists of a three year program based on three hours of study per day. Each course begins with an orientation into the shop in which students are introduced to all equipment. Safety is strongly emphasized for its vital importance to everyday shop work. Students learn in an informal atmosphere through actual participation, text book instruction, and practice of skills. Business aspects of each trade and methods of evaluating completed work are also taught. Lessons in related subjects, such as science and mathematics, help to furnish students with a complete understanding of trade operations. Teachers, in addition to their instructional duties, supply guidance and help to counsel students in career opportunities. Encouraging students to strive for quality, teachers try to impart professional attitudes and a sense of the importance of the professions. It is expected that, upon completion of a course, students will be able either to enter satisfactory employment or begin an apprenticeship.

Administration

Mr. John Borden
B.S., Seton Hall University
M.Ed., Vocational and Technical Administration, Rutgers University
Coordinator of Vo-Tech School

Mr. Louis Hegy
Director of Vocational Education

Former business teachers and office secretaries took up new positions as administrative aids this year. With great enthusiasm, Mr. John Borden and Mr. Louis Hegy took over extensive duties as, repectively, coordinator and director. Degrees in vocational administration and education aided them in their duties.

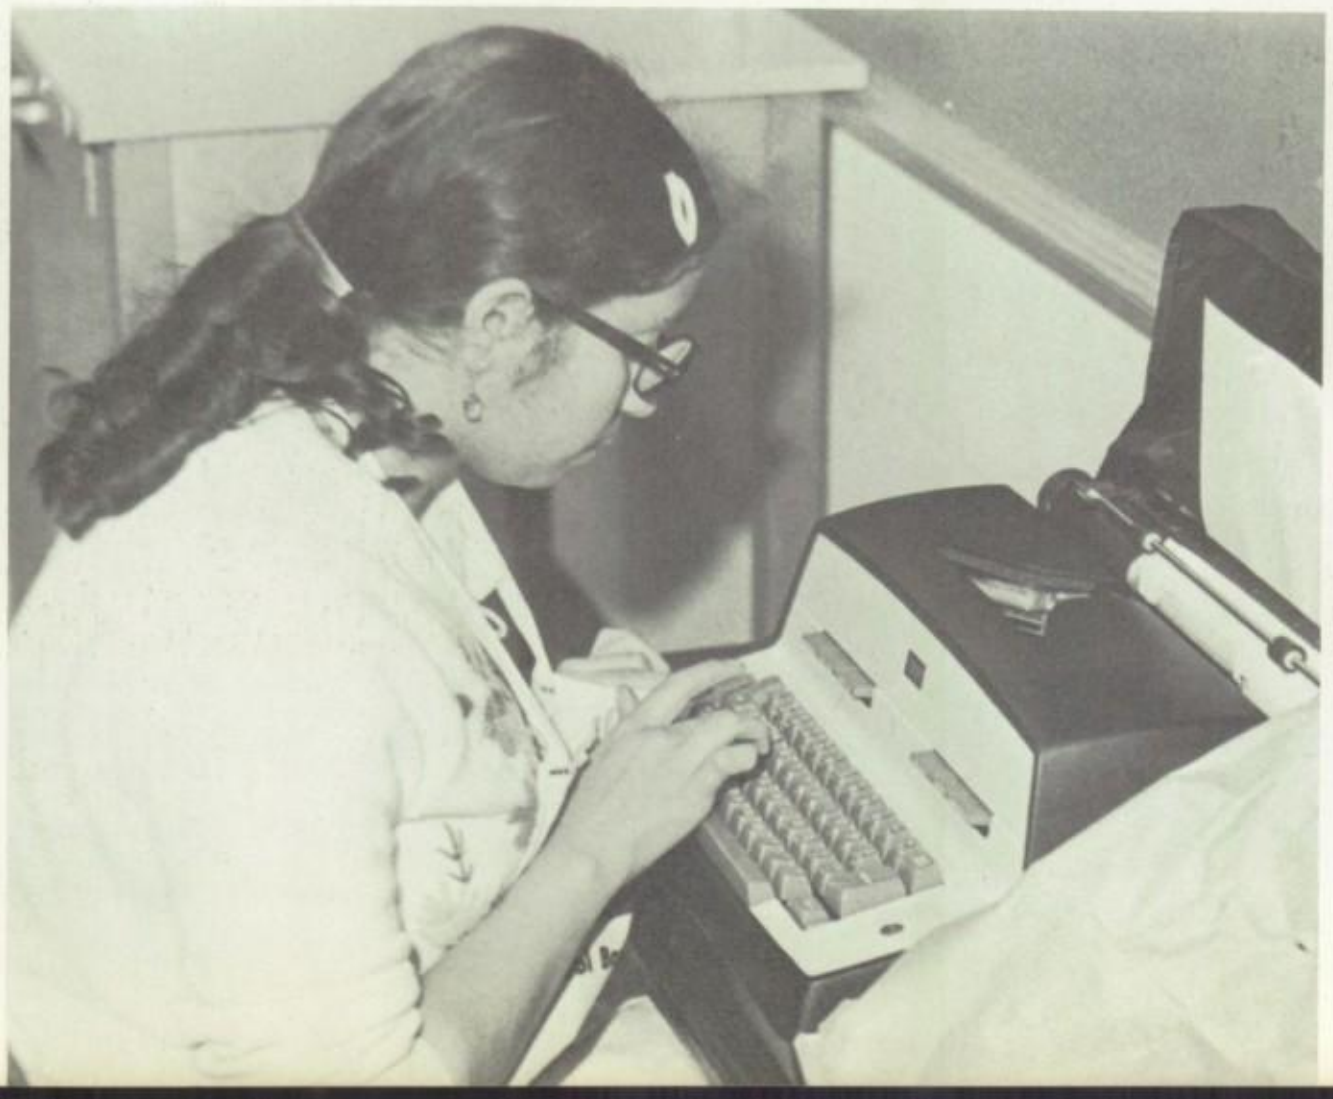
Mr. John Borden

Employment Orientation Program

Combining special education with employment preparation, this program utilizes the areas offered in the trade school to prepare handicapped students for positions in industry. Vocationally oriented training enables the students to better prepare themselves to be self-sustaining members of society.

Students perform various jobs for the Board of Eudcation. One such assignment is the production of meter sticks for the grammar schools, in preparation for the upcoming conversion from our present system to the metric.

This totally individual program enables the students to achieve their potential when it might otherwise have been stiffled.



Francisa Lebron practices her typing skills.

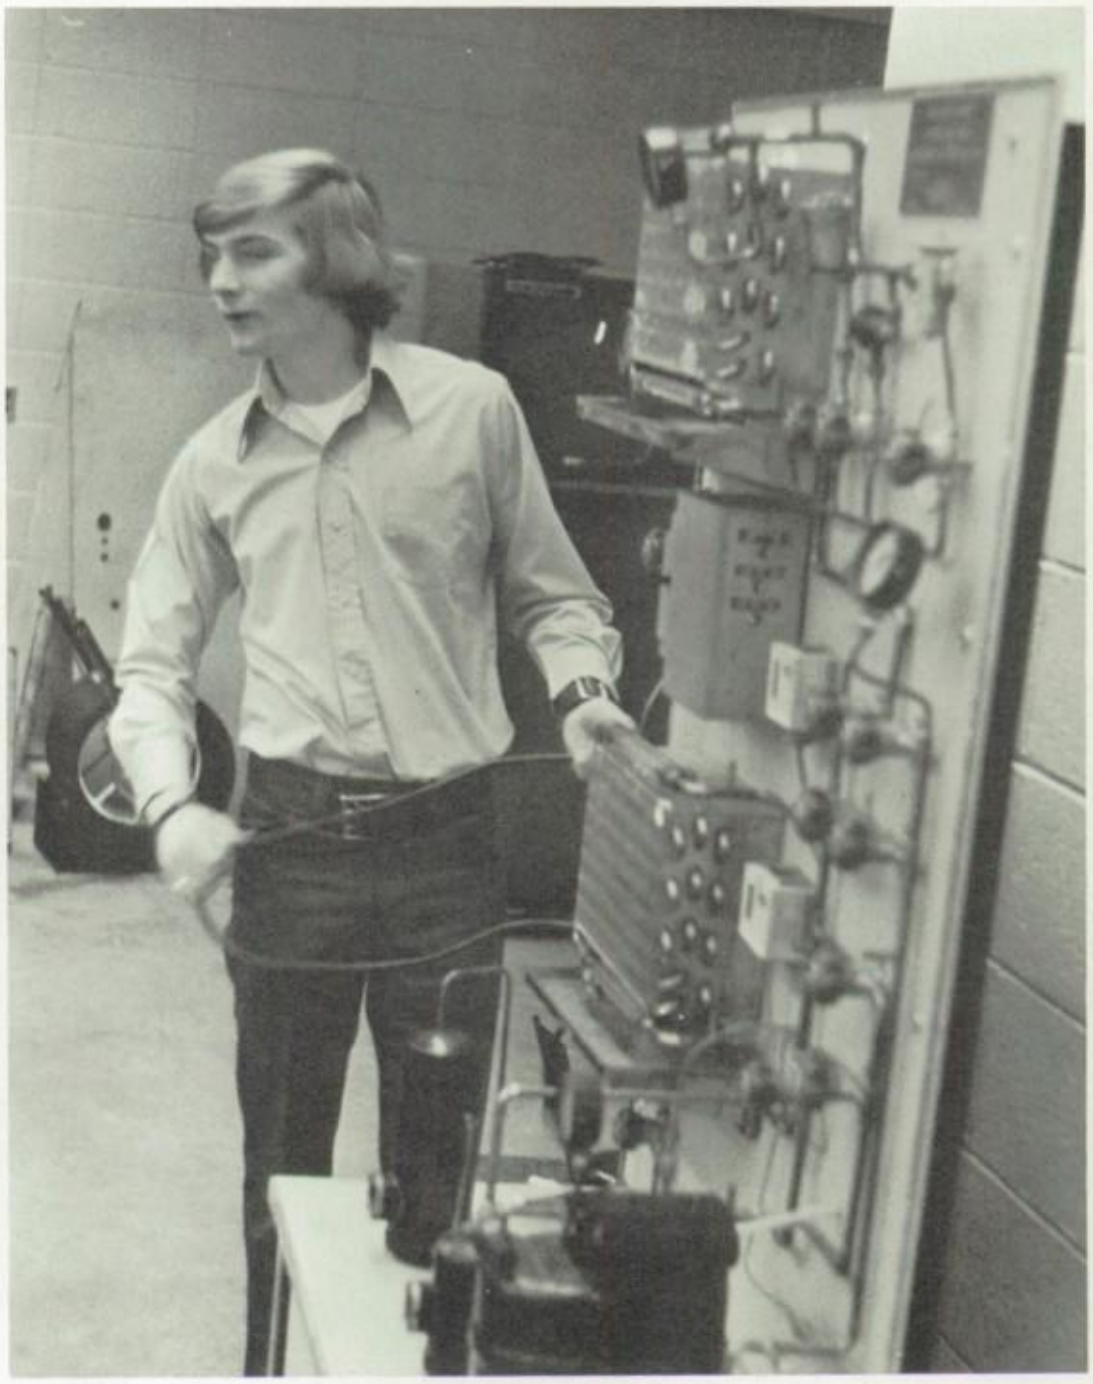
Mr. Bryan H. Wall

Heating, Ventilation, and Air-Conditioning

The ability to service and repair industrial, residential and domestic heating, ventilation and air-conditioning equipment are the aims of this course. Students learn by dismantling and repairing various units, such as refrigerators, air-conditioners and furnaces. Electrical wiring, sheet metal work, principles of ventilation and installation, and trouble-shooting are among the areas covered. Positions in industry and servicing fields are numerous and varied.

Mr. Miles E. Delemos

Daniel Olesky



Ken Kenhergenhan makes use of the Refrigeration Trainer in the HVAC shop.

Auto Shop

Servicing and repair of autos are the key objectives of this course. Students are introduced to the various components of the auto and learn about its many systems. Knowledge of material and equipment used by auto mechanics, interpretation of sketches and diagrams, and use of shop manuals are areas of basic importance stressed in the course.

The shop is run as one would expect an industrial shop to be: jobs are divided into several categories with a foreman overseeing all work. Students are given a chance to work in each of these positions, which rotate on a weekly basis. A policy restricting cars that the students may service includes cars owned by the students and their families, Board of Education employees and various public and non-profit organizations.

After completing two years of the course, students may enter a co-op program or continue instruction in advanced technical skills.

Mr. Vincent C. Savoca

Bake Shop

Pies, cakes, cookies, breads, rolls, sweet yeast dough, and decorating are the units of study which the baking course covers. This course represents a true activity program with skill and learning expected to result from actual production. Initial instruction deals primarily with measurements, ingredients and basic procedures of baking.

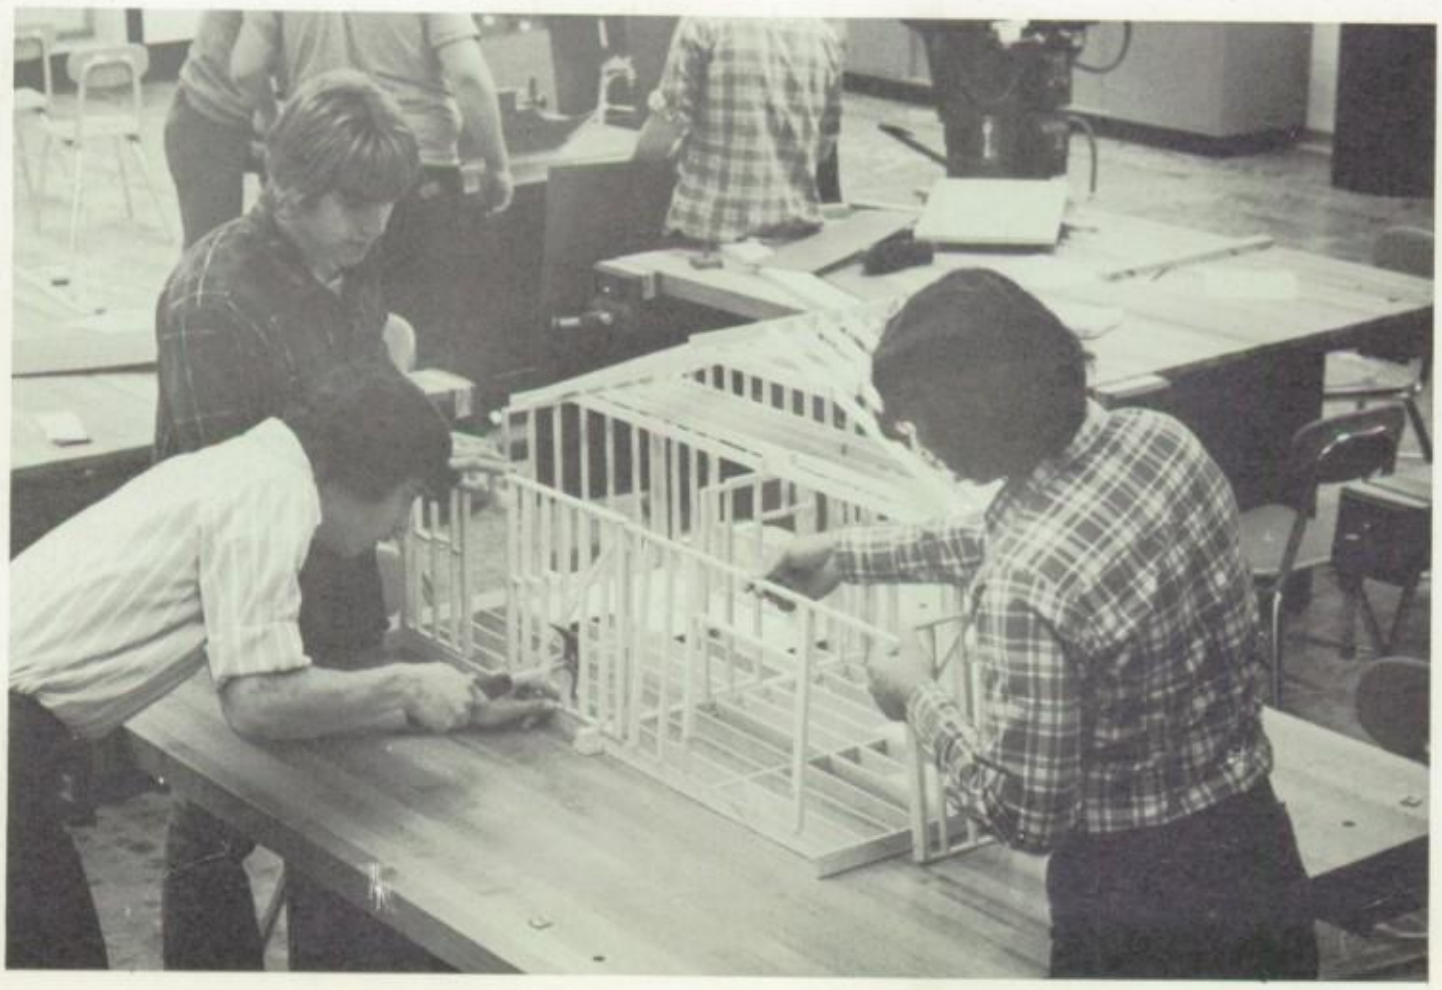
Nearly the entire shop has combined to form the Junior Achievement corporation, Lindough. Production of pound cakes and fruit cakes, by order, help provide money to purchase supplies. Aside from J. A. products, the shop also sells baked goods on a daily basis. Career opportunities include bakers' positions in restaurants, hotels, hospitals and bakeries.

Mr. Donald G. Raiger

The bake shop

Carpentry and Cabinet making

Manipulative skills, use of hand tools, operation of wood-working machines, and knowledge of materials are fundamental areas covered in the carpentry and cabinetmaking course. Students are concentrated on all aspects of house building: foundation work, framing, roofing, staircase building, interior and exterior finish, cabinet making, and mill work. Students put into practice what they have learned by erecting scale model houses. Blueprint reading and related mathematics and science are also taught. Job opportunities exist in all facets of carpenty.



Mr. George D. St. Andrassy

Students in the Carpentry and Cabinetmaking Shop build a scale model house.

Commercial Art

Commercial arts encompasses all art in the commercial field areas including advertisement, illustration, design and layout. Students in this course learn the basic skills and techniques, such as color, composition, drawing, painting, lettering, and photography, used in these areas. Students sketch from still life models, photographs, and landscapes. Relief and silk screen printing skills and the use of the photo typositor are also taught. Students learn to employ these various techniques to produce desired visual effects. At the conclusion of the course, students are expected to have completed a portfolio in preparation for entering employment.

Miss Adelle Dapkus

Mrs. Emily Kubas

Cosmetology

In preparation for their state examinations, cosmetology students receive one thousand hours of instruction in both theoretical and practical phases of cosmetology. Bacteriology, hygiene, anatomy and physiology are among the theoretical phases of study. Practical aspects include all manipulative techniques such as shampooing, hair curling, coloring and setting, manicuring, and wig work. Girls practice on manikins and fellow students. After six hundred hours of practice, girls are given the chance to work with actual customers. Through this, students gain experience in dealing with both people and business transactions.

Career opportunities in cosmetology include beauticians, cosmetic consultants, cosmetic merchandisers, hair stylists, and manicurists.

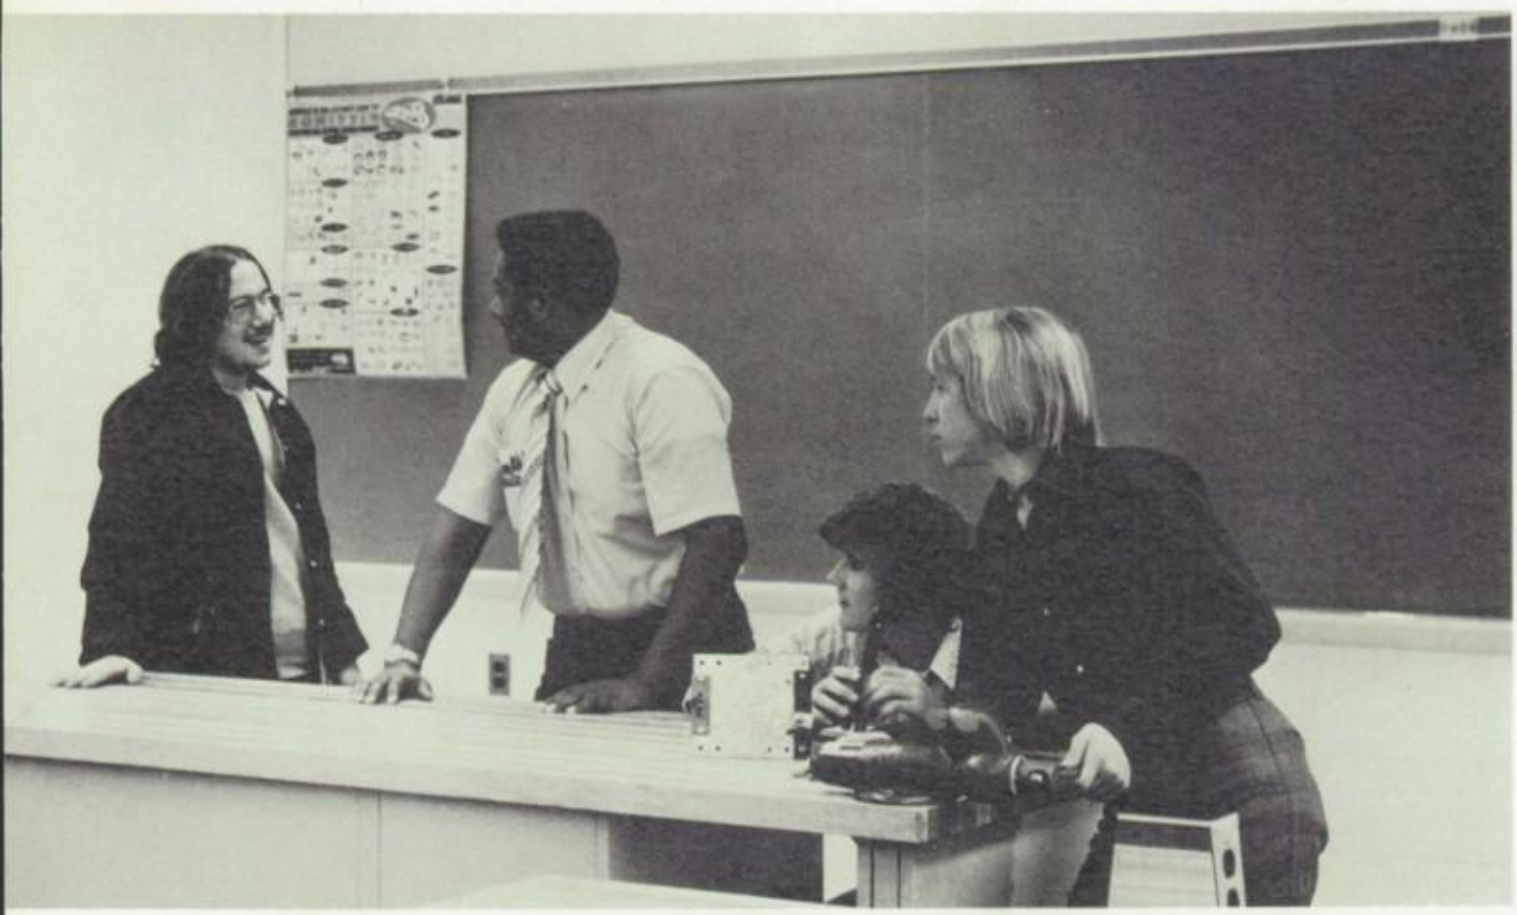
Electrical Trade

This course emphasizes the basic skills needed in the use of all common electrical tools, stressing understanding of electrical instruments and their accessories. Students gain a thorough knowledge of materials and devices installed by electricians. In addition to learning installation of wiring and equipment in accordance with electrical codes, students learn maintenance methods and circuit analysis.

Students gain practical knowledge through working with AC/DC motor generators, setting up various experiments and running through numerous exercises. Both residential and commercial wiring are taught, leaving students employment options in electrical contracting jobs, the building industry and electrical repair and maintenance.



Mr. Fisher discusses the use of the magnetic starter enclosure.

Mr. Charles Fisher

Geraldine Rogers reads up on transformers.

Radio and Television

Students in this course are instructed in the fundamentals of electronics. Development of abilities needed to repair radio and television eqiupment is the main aim. Students learn to construct, analyze and trouble-shoot electronic units, beginning with simple tubes and transistor circuits. Use of specialized electronics equipment and measuring devices is stressed and principles of computers taught. Skills in mathematics and science are essential for success in this field.

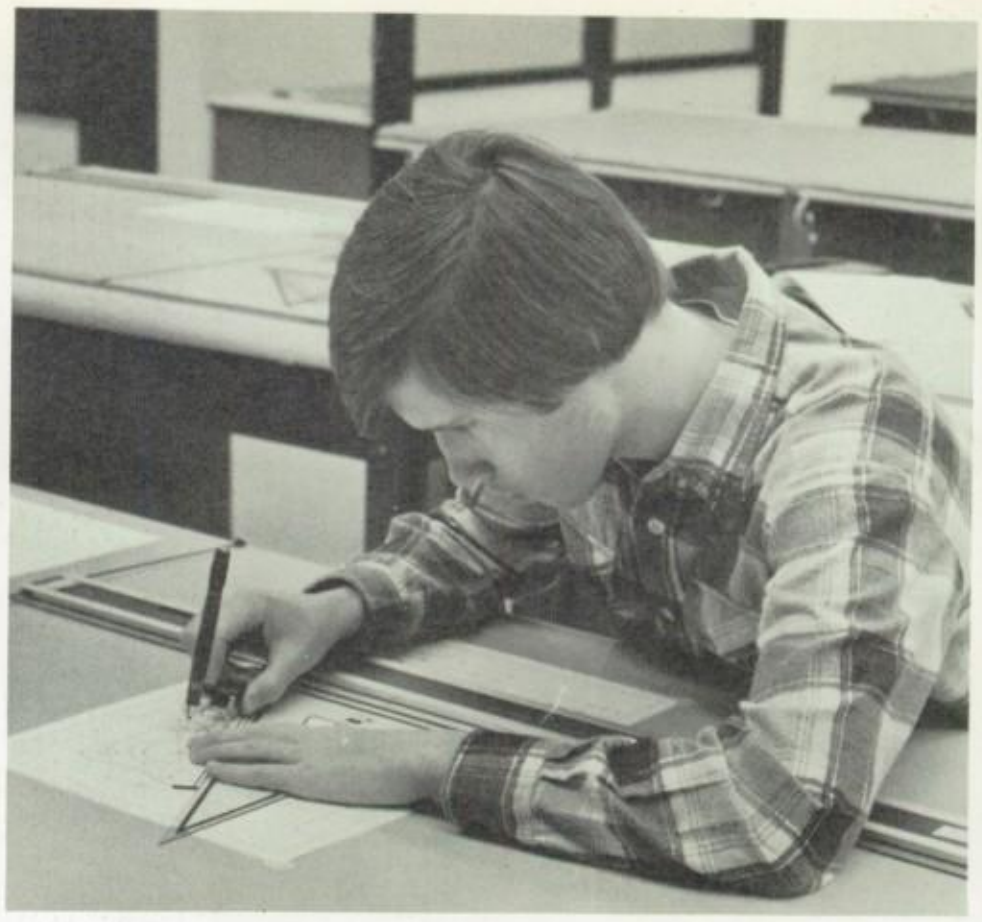
Mr. William V. Levine

Vocational Drafting

Application of the basic skills needed to make and read technical sketches and drawings are the goals of this course. Students learn the principles of orthographic projection and operation and maintenance of such sophisticated drafting equipment as the amonia and dry-developing copy machines.

Related mathematics and science are necessary for a complete knowledge of technical design. Through discipline of hand and eye and the use of precision instruments, students learn to translate ideas into working drawings. Tool, die, machine and architecture designing, electrical drafting, and production engineering are among career fields open to the students.

Mr. Thomas A. Fiorillo



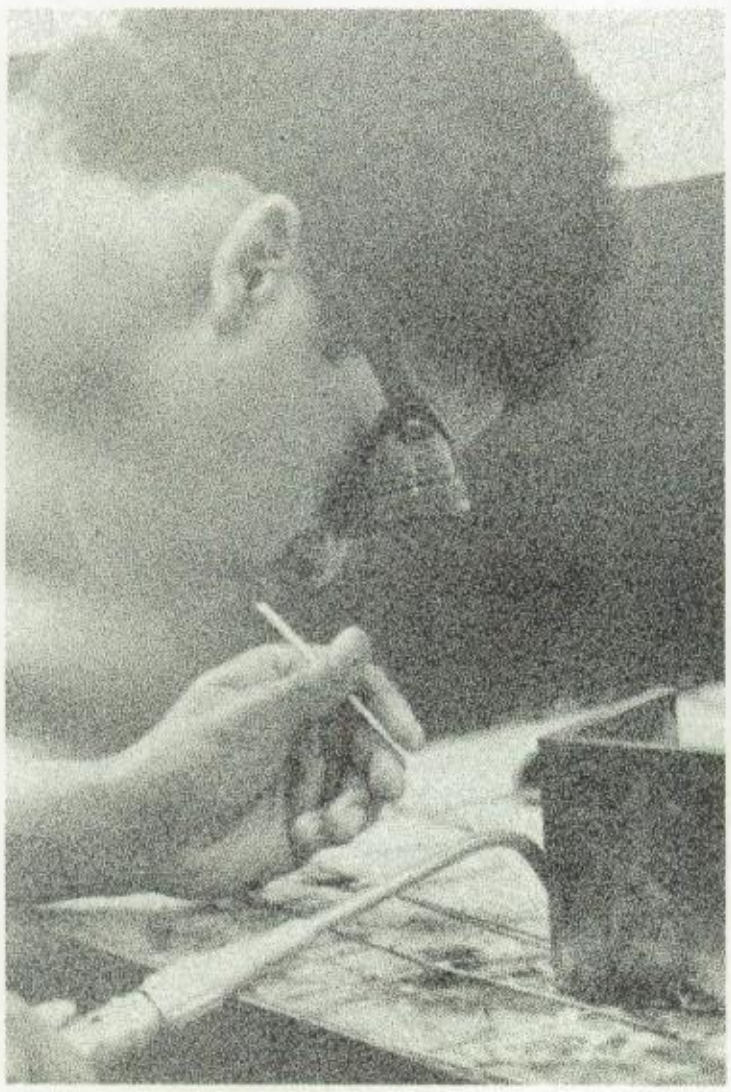
Joe Kochran makes use of a forty-five degree triangle.

Welding

Electric, oxygen-acetylene, and inert gas welding are the three basic types of welding taught in this course. Techniques taught include manual and automatic oxygen-acetylene methods and tungsten and mechanical inert gas methods. Students learn to weld all types of commercial metals commonly used today. Related science, mathematics and blueprint reading are essential for successful understanding of the material presented.

Employment opportunities are endless for a competent welder and include such areas as construction and the automobile and sheet metal industries.

Mr. Walter Jedwabnik



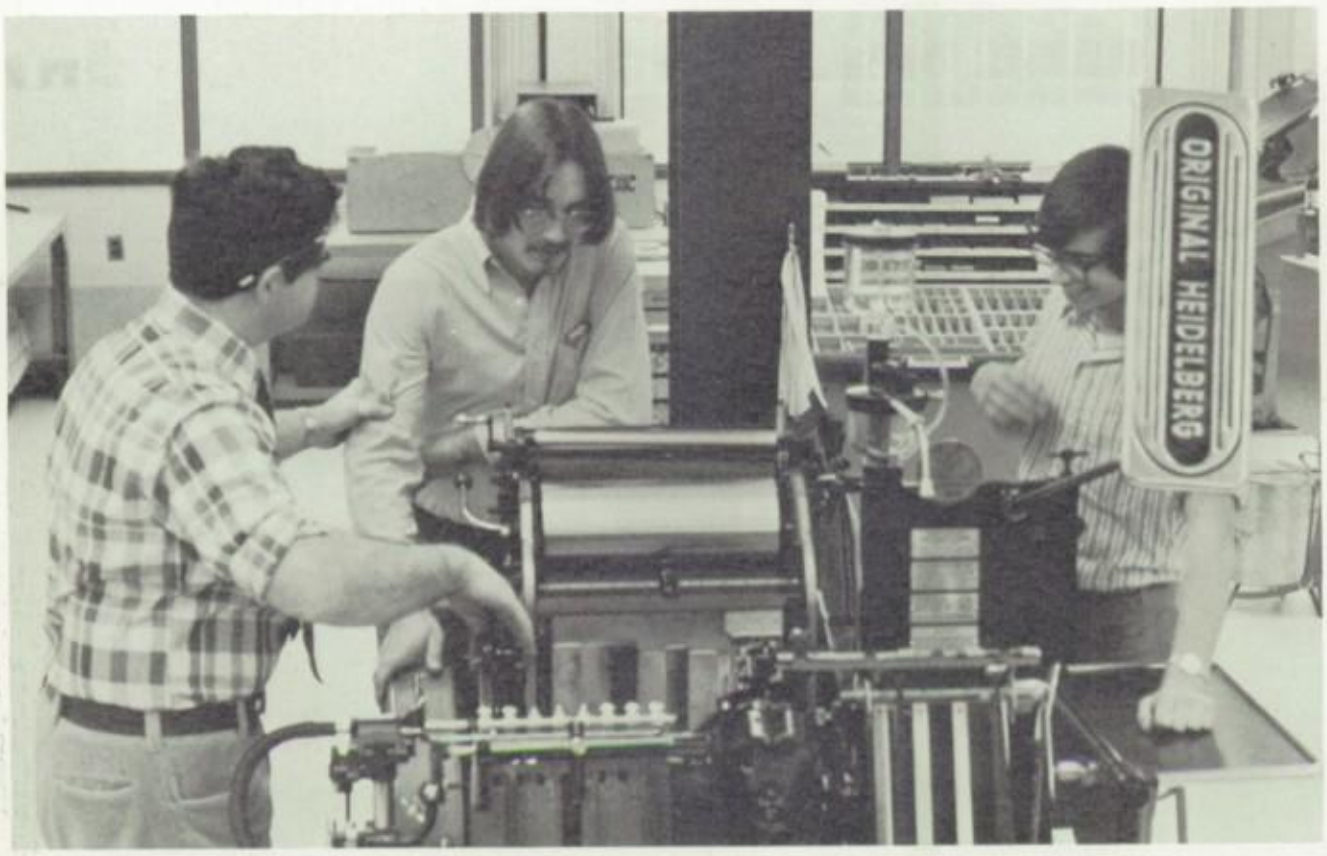
Cecil Butler

Sparks fly as Tom Craig welds his project.

Graphic Arts

Teaching the basic skills of printing, this course emphasizes studies in composition, layout, plate-making, photo offset printing and photography. The shop is equipped with a complete darkroom and such machines as the tape photo-typesetter. Students gain proficiency through completing actual jobs. They are responsible for all Board of Education printing needs and often find themselves with assignments from city agencies and civic organizations. Although not seriously affected by the paper shortage, the shop did experience price increases and some difficulty in attaining supplies.

Mr. James Richardson

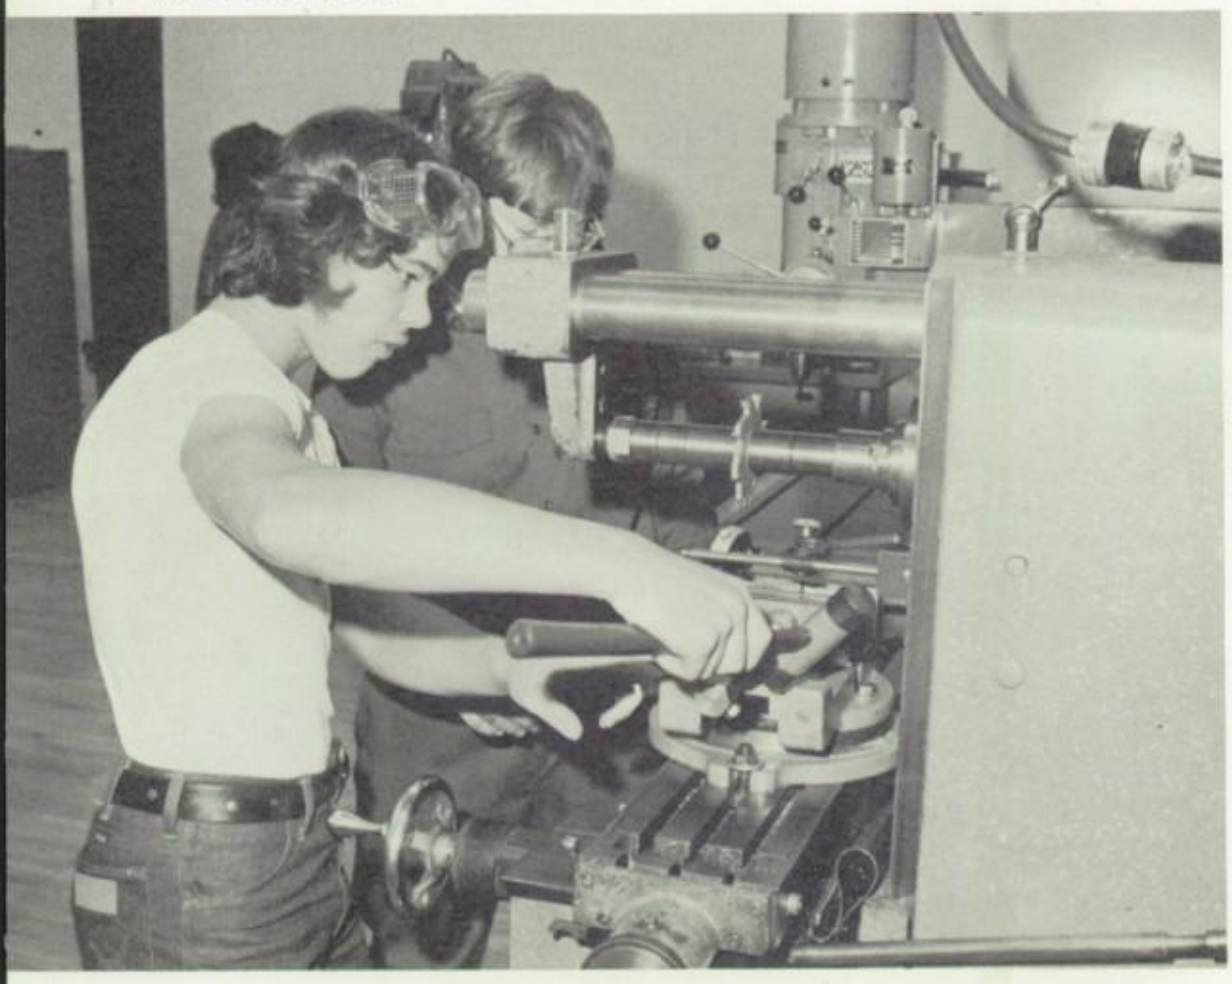


Mr. Richardson instructs Walter Konieczko and Gary Schwarze on the use of a Wind Mill Press.

Machine Shop

This course is designed to teach students the use of all machines in the tool and die making industry. Tools and dies, which are instruments and devices used in mass producing machine parts, are used in numerous industries. Ability to repair these machines and to operate numerical tape control and electrical discharge machines are the basic goals of the course.

Job opportunities in this field are numerous and many exist in the surrounding area. One third of the junior-senior boys already are employed regularly. Careers include all-round machinist, repair machinist, mill wright, and tool and die maker.



Adjusting the Milling Device is Ecadio Regalado.

STUDENT BODY

Those hundreds of faces in the halls, the friends, classmates, and strangers reveal to us so much of ourselves and so much of the world of people.

Constantly amazed at how different and yet similar we all are, we begin to realize that others act as we do and that we act as others do. Yet, despite our basic sameness, we must learn to deal with each other as individuals. It is as part of the student body that we learn this important part of living, the ability to get along with people. Through the student body, we expand our awarness of ourselves and others.

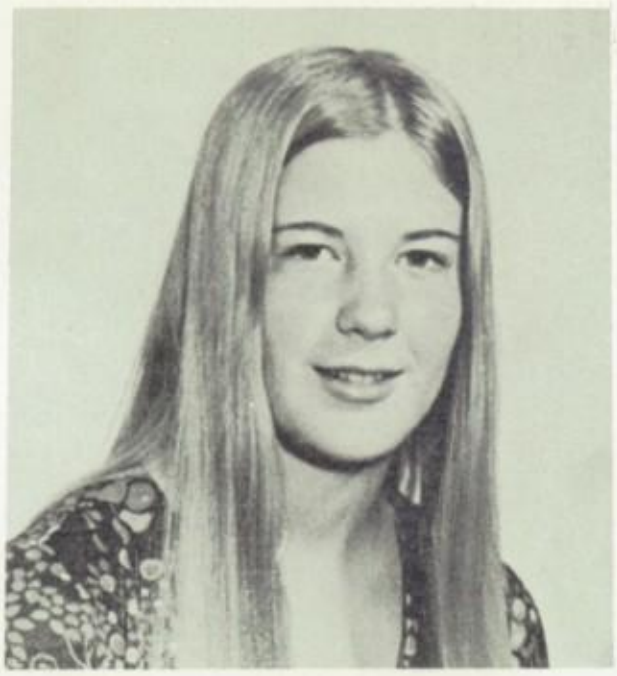
In Memorium



DIANNE FLEMING LONG
1957-1974

"Just yesterday morning they let me know you were gone.
Suzanne, the plans they made put an end to you,
I walked out this morning and I wrote down this song.
I just can't remember who to send it to.
I've seen fire and I've seen rain.
I've seen sunny days that I thought would never end.
I've seen lonely times when I could not find a friend.
But I always thought I'd see you again."

ADVERTISE-MENTS

Advertisements — how much a part of our lives they are! Informing, advocating, entertaining, convincing, advertisements shape us almost without our knowing it. They lead us to aspire to some things and to reject others. They influence our decisions in choosing what we eat and wear, where we live and travel.

The things we learn, experience and discover every day serve to raise our minds, hearts and spirits to a higher level. That which we had not or could not do yesterday we do today. We know our boundaries and push them back — and are sometimes pushed back in return. But, little by little, we learn. We are growing and will grow each day of our lives — for life is a process of unfolding knowledge and constantly expanding awareness.
